FOR NEXT GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA

ADJT. GEN. D. H. HASTINGS,

Subject to the decision of the Republican State Convention

EDITORIAL BRIEFS

MORE than a century ago Dr. Benjamin Rush, in Philadelphia, treated influenza nearly as the doctors of the present day do—by giving lots of quinine and other pills. He wrote a book on the epidemic which is said to contain pretty nearly all that is to be known about it.

SOME of our able Democratic contemporaries are still vociferously parading the fact that Govenor McKenna, of Virginia, has never drank, swore or used tobacco in all his life. They fail to explain, however, why the fast was so carefully suppressed during the campaign in which the Governor was elected.

IT may be that State Chairman Kisner will have trouble in securing re-election, but if a heroic and successful effort to keep the Republican majority in Pennsylvania below 100,000 in 1889 counts for anything, he will be re-elected without opposition. Chairman Kisner has been recognized by the Republican party as a mighty useful man to have at the head of a Democratic campaign, and the Democracy ought to be liberal enough to follow suit.

THE question of the Bible in the public schools has been revived by the Rev. Dr. Greer, of New York, who in a recent address, declared that to maintain consistently the separation of Church and State, which is the law of this nation, the reading of the Bible in the public schools should be prohibited. Over twelve years ago Henry Ward Beecher created a sensation by mantaining the same principle. While it is probable that this view of the question finds more supporters than it did then, it is still in advance of general ecclesiastical opinion.

THE decision of Judges Rockefeller and Mayer, in the Lycoming Judgeship contest, by no means ends that famous case. Having decided from the testimony that the burden of proof rests upon Hon. John J Metzger, and not upon Mr. Benjamin S Bentley, the contestant, the contest will be still further prolonged with the possible result of seating Mr. Bentley on the bench now occupied by Judge Metzger. Renewed interest is attracted by this decision, while the costs are mounting higher. Justice should be done, however, no matter what the costs may be.

A PRISONER who has been in a Michigan Penitentiary for 20 years has been found to be an innocent man, and has been set free. Has the man no recompense? Of course he cannot reclaim his years, but he should be paid something for the unspeakable injustice that has been done to him. Had he been convicted of murder and hanged the case would have been comparatively easy, for then nothing could be done and no one could make any trouble. There are therefore advantages in hanging, for what is done is done, and there's an end of it.

IT may be important for certain persons to know that Mrs. Vice President Morton has reached a position of authority regarding many things proper in society. Therefore be it known that she does not believe in color on the table, which may lead to a much-needed revolution. She will not even permit so much as a doiley, and would consider the red and orange satin scarfs so much in use last season for table centers ruinous to effect of china and silver. All her china is made by Haviland, and has only a crinkly line of gold about the rims. Vice President's initials are depicted on each piece in gold monograms.

COAL of an excellent quality has been discovered at Vincennes, Ind., at the depth of 350 feet. The vein is four and one-quarter feet thick. As soon as the correct thickness of the vein was ascertained the engineer opened wide his whistle and tied her down, and let her blow until the entire town was aroused to a sense of the great fortune that had come. The citizens generally are wild with delight, and a grand ratification meeting will be held in honor of the event. Vincennes has a perfect right to "go it," but before going too far everything about the alleged discovery should be found out.

IN THE SOUTH.

BUREAU SOUTHERN NEWS,
RALEIGH, N. C.

The great desire of the general public is to know what is transpiring throughout the civilized and uncivilized world. Many northern people think the South is a part of the uncivilized; that it is inhabited by mosquitos, negros, and cut throat and aristocratic whites; that it is largely covered with swamps, and that there is little in the section to commend it to the best class of people. The majority of the writers and correspondents of the Southern News Bureau are of northern birth and the General Manager takes this opportunity to say that he has selected them equally from the two great political parties, Republican and Democratic; and that a truthful, fair and candid statement of facts as they exist and transpire in this part of the Union shall be given.

Your readers are doubtless interested in the manner of living of the southern people; what the land is capable of producing; how the farmers plant and harvest; how cotton, rice, peanuts, sugar cane and oranges are cultivated. All these subjects will be taken up and interesting pen pictures of "down in Dixie" will be given. The news of the day will be reported. The readers of these letters will be kept fully posted as to what the Southerners are doing in the industrial world. For instance, it is reported this week that the greatest smoking tobacco factory in the world, "The Durham, N. C. has been purchased by an English sydicate for three and a half million dollars. This business was owned equally by a southern and a northern firm, and was started not many years ago with less than ten thousand dollars.

Those interested in the mineral resources will be posted as to the latest news in this line. We have this week the great gold find in Montgomery County, N. C., where in less than a week, in one spot, there was taken out of surface or placer mines by cradle working, one hundred and fifty thousand dollars worth of the precious metal.

Those who think the South is one vast stretch of sand and swamp are very much mistaken. There are lofty mountains of more than six thousand feet elevation; fertile valleys through which flow streams that afford many opportunities for the utilization of power by the capitalist and manufacturer; immense forests of oak, hickory, walnut and other woods; beautiful hills covered with native grass and underlaid with almost every known mineral and precious stone. It was a northern man's good fortune to find in the South a mine from which is taken a stone more rare than the diamond, and egalling it in value. This mine was discovered by Prof. Hidden, and in honor of him the stones are termed Hiddenites. Among the mountains the trout fisherman finds the finest sport, while the woods and fields abound with quail. The largest sporting club in America owns the right of hunting over a wide territory in the Piedmont section and has an annual trial of bird dogs.

It is about this wonderful unknown Southland that we propose to furnish information from week to week. One of the principal features will be our descriptive letters. "How to make money at farming in the South." We will start out next week with "The physical geography of the South," and follow with "How cotton is planted and cultivated." With this letter we send to the editor a package of cotton seed so that those interested in the subject may see the seed of the plant from which the larger part of our clothing is made. The seed will germinate and grow if planted in hothouses about the first of May; so the lady friends of the editor can speak in advance for a cotton seed to plant.

We will treat of the humorous side of life down South. How Uncle Sambo and Aunt Dinah spend their happy, contented lives with song and jolly, health-giving fun. The letters will be made amusing, interesting and instructive.

THE present secretary of the navy will probably advise that $269,000,000 be spent during the next fourteen years in the construction of a navy which will be a credit to the country. The New York Sun, which may be regarded as a second edition of William S Holman, "the watch dog of the treasury," warmly approves the secretary's idea, a fact which ought to convince the bitterest democrat that it is a wise one. The work of making a new navy which was very creditably begun under the Cleveland administration, should be continued, and we have every reason to believe that the lesson taught the country under the corrupt administration of G M Robeson, of New Jersey was so well learned that there is no danger of the new work of navy building falling into the hands of men who are either dishonest or incapable. While we are at peace with all the world, a navy will add to our security and as we have the money there is no reason why it should not be built as rapidly as possible.

The New Federal District.

The counties named in Congressman McCormick's bill to create a new Federal Judicial district in this State, to be known as the Middle district, are Lackawanna, Wyoming, Bradford, Tioga, Potter, Cameron, Clinton, Lycoming, Center, Union, Snyder, Mifflin, Juniata, Northumberland, Montour, Columbia, Sullivan, Luzerne, Dauphin, Perry, Huntingdon, Fulton, Franklin, Adams, York, Cumberland, Lebanon and Clearfield—twenty-eight in all, more than one third the number in the State, and having one-third of the total population.

The necessity for a new district in the central portion of the State has long been recognized, and its creation should not be longer delayed. It is provided in the bill that courts shall be held at Scranton, beginning in March and September; at Williamsport, in January and June; and at Harrrisburg, in May and October of each year, to continue such length of time as the Judges shall determine. The steady increase in population, the large material interests of the counties named, and the consequent increase of legal business in the Federal courts are the reasons assigned for the creation of the district.

THE prospects are that within the next five years the continents of North and South America will have their railroad systems joined in one. The building of less than 2,000 miles of railroad between the harbor of Carthagena, in Venezuela, and Cuzco, in Peru, is all that is necessary to bring this about, and a number of American capitalists are considering the construction of the unbuilt link. The commercial benefits from the union would be incalculable. But we wish to call particular attention to the vast and picturesque regions it would open to the tourist. A trip to and through South America could be made in less time than to and through Europe. The variety and wealth of sights one would see on such a trip would be unexcelled. Supposing one left Washington at night, the next day he would pass through the cotton fields, and on the second day go through the orange groves of Florida. On the third day he would be in Havana, and three days after enter the city of Carthagena, at midnight cross the Amazon, pass Cuzco, the capital of the Incas, in the following afternoon and climb through the Andes on the morning of the ninth day, and three days after reach Santiago and Valparaiso, where he can cross and take in the eastern part of South America by well established railroad lines. Perhaps before a half dozen years more we shall have continuous tickets sold over this route, with stop-over privileges at all the many important points of interest, and that it will be much traveled is certain. The two tours now most popular, the North lake and Californian, will then have to look to their laurels.

AFTER a long and continued struggle, the Democrats of West Virginia have succeeded in counting General Goff out of the Gubernatorial chair of that state. It is as clear a case of fraud as has ever been exhibited in this country. Republican ballots were cast out for no other pretext than that they were given to General Goff. The Republicans made a strong fight for their rights, but the legislative machinery being in the hands of the Democrats, their efforts were fruitless. It can be seen at a glance what a useless thing it would be for the Republicans of South Carolina or Mississippi to make a struggle to have their votes cast and counted correctly. As long as the present system of voting is used, there will be no such thing as honest elections in many southern States. There are too many ways in which fraud can be committed.

STRANGE, is it not, that Christopher Rice Mansel Talbot, the Liberal who sat continuously in the English House of Commons for a period of sixty years, should follow so soon the footsteps of the late William D. Kelley. Both were fathers of the House and both had grown gray in public service but the English statesman is simply remarkable for his long name.

CAN POVERTY BE ABOLISHED?

In rhetoric, in brillancy of thought, in forensic power, in captivating and interesting attractiveness the lecture on "How to Abolish Poverty," as delivered by Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn on last Tuesday evening was all that man could desire to listen to, but the question that it presents, the "poser" that demands an answer—but which will probably remain unanswered—is: Is it practicable? Can the theories as advanced by the learned Priest, at this late day, be in any way made use of? Can the poverty stricken rise in their might and assert their right to an equal interest in all the lands of these United States? Can individual man and public corporation be taxed to the death to compel them to improve or permit improvements? Is it possible for a system of single taxation to be brought about? In brief and in whole, is it at all possible that, at any time in the future, the laboring man will be elevated to a just and equitable plane and that this poverty, this accursed, soul-destroying, wretched, degrading poverty will, even in a measure, be abolished? and, if it is possible, is it at all probable?

For answer ask your own conscience, fathom your own heart and bring up your good intentions and stand them side by side with human nature, the very Old Adam if you please, and the answer comes back, not in soft and dreamy whispers like the sighing of a summer wind, but in loud stentorian tones, like the crash of mighty billows or the rush of many warriers, comes the reply, no, a thousand times no. So long as man is given to mingle with man and time and talent have a monetary value it will continue to be like as in the past it always has been, a great game; a struggling, surging, grasping, frenzied, mighty mass of humanity, locked in one prolonged struggle for supremacy; a "big fish swallow little fish" game, and nothing but the blood of the weaker will satisfy the inhuman—no, not inhuman but uncontrollable—thirst of the stronger. It is simply nothing more or less than a life's battle in which the weak are murdered by the strong in their efforts to reach the coveted goal.

It is a wonderful struggle, but in all ways human. To amend it would necessitate a reform greater than Christ originated when he came into this world almost nineteen hundred years ago. It would require a modification of the entire human family so that all would be susceptible to one leader, as there never was or never will be a body of men come together that could agree on the line of reform as marked out by Dr. McGlynn. It suits for pulpit oratory but it is no good for everyday practice. It enriches the brain but only impoverishes the hands. It may be pleasant to listen to but it breathes an idea of what might be and thus creates a desire for vengeance. Such preaching and teaching is only suited for pastime not for instruction, as in the latter case it would only be labor lost while in the former it would be justly appreciated if not of any benefit.

Can poverty be abolished? no, never! it is essential to the welfare of the nation; was there no poverty there would be no comparison; no paralell; no nothing but an uneventful existence and many of the wonderful discoveries would still be floundering in the sluggish minds of a sleepy humanity, because there was no incentive to produce them. Not until the trumpet of Gabriel shall be blown on that final resurrection day will poverty be abolished, and then and only then shall the poor in this world know such riches as never was given to mortal humanity to know if they follow the teachings and instincts of a true and God-like conscience.

BECAUSE the pastor of a Massachusetts congregation prohibited kissing games at church meetings his doors have been tied shut, his gate nailed up, smoke blown into his house, revolvers fired promiscuously about to scare him, and whiskey bottles emptied in and thrown about his church. Yet church kissing games are supposed to be innocent, likewise those who indulge in them.

WITH the Czar of Russia going out of politics on account of champagne, Bismark suffering from overwork and threatened insanity, and our own William L. Scott abandoning the Pennsylvania Democracy on account of strong cigars, the international political situation seems to be pretty badly tangled.

IN New York an enterprising Italian pays $1,552 per week for the privilege of picking over the city's dirt—or over $80,000 a year. And he does not depend upon finding diamonds or gold or money. His reliance for profit is upon bones, rags, tin cans, etc. A few years ago the city paid men to trim the dirt; then a man was induced to pay for the labor out of his findings, and then competion for the place set in, with the result that the city derives considerable revenue from letting out the privilege.

THE SAMOAN TREATY.

The Samoan Treaty, which was negotiated last summer and which bears the signatures of Messrs. John A. Kasson, William Walter Phelps and George H Bates as the American Commissioners, has just been sent to the Senate. It is printed in both English and French. Having been referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, it will be taken up and disposed of without delay. There is but little doubt that it will be approved of substantially in its present shape.

This important document, it will be remembered, was framed by a special conference composed of representatives of the United States, Great Britain and Germany, which met last spring in Berlin for the purpose of settling the Samoan controversy. It consists of eight articles, dealing respectively with the independence and neutrality of the islands, with the modification of existing treaties, with the establishment of a Supreme Court of Justice, with titles to lands and the methods of determining the same, with the municipality of Apia and the government thereof, with the collection of import duties and taxes, with the sale of firearms and intoxicating liquors, and with what are called general dispositions.

The object of the treaty is to establish law and order in the island of Samoa, and its provisions are such as seem well fitted to secure this object. The people are guaranteed the free right to elect their king or chief and choose their form of government; but in view of the difficulties which would surround an election in the present disordered condition of the country, it is agreed that the sovereign power shall be vested in Malietoa Laupepa, who was made and appointed King on the 12th of July 1884, and who was formally recognized by the three powers, and that his successors shall be duly elected according to the laws and customs of Samoa. This arrangement shall not be disturbed except by common agreement of the three Powers.

Under the new arrangements the most important functionary in Samoa, the King not excepted, will be the Chief Justice who will preside over the Supreme Court. He will be named by the three Powers, but he will be appointed by the King and his counselors. His jurisdiction, as defined, will be extensive and his decisions are to be final. It will be a difficult office to fill. It will be no easy matter even for a wise and impartial judge to give decisions which will be pleasing alike to natives, to Americans, to British and to Germans. The personal comfort of the occupant of such a position is not rendered the greater by the fact that on complaint of any one of the four governments concerned, his removal may be accomplished by a majority of the nominating Powers.

The arrangements regarding the local government of Apia, regarding taxes and duties, and firearms and liquors, are satisfactory enough; but in regard to some of these particulars, it may be found that laws are more easily made than enforced. It is distinctly provided that no one of the Powers shall exercise any separate control over the islands. Even with this saving clause the experiment is somewhat novel, and it remains to be seen how three such Powers as the United States, Great Britain and Germany shall be able to work together in the premises. All things considered however, it is probably the best arrangement possible.

To become operative the treaty must be ratified within ten months of the date of its signature. This time will expire April 14. We all wish prosperity to Samoa; and it is some source of gratification to us to know that but for the influence of the United States, and the tact of her skillful representatives at Berlin, the arrangements in favor of independence and self-government would have been less satisfactory.

WILLIAM THORNTON BLUEFIELD, a resident of Hickman county, Tenn., claims to be 127 years of age, and he possesses some remarkable proofs of his age. Among these is a very ancient looking family Bible, in which his birth is recorded as having taken place on January 3, 1763, at a village six miles west of Lake Drummond, Va.

Perine C Whitney and Miss Josephine Ward, the latter deaf and dumb, are to be married at West Haven, Conn., in a few days. The groom is 68 and the bride 40 years younger.

Thirteen hundred working girls held a reunion and a ball in New York the other evening. All of them were dressed in cheese cloth of various colors. There wasn't a man present.

Unseasonble freaks are plentifully reported in Connecticut. Mrs. Avis Ross, of Danielsonville, opened the front door of her house after church service on Sunday, and a big blacksnake tied itself into knots for her edification. She got a club and killed it.

Verdict of a coroner's jury in Delaware county, N. Y. "The jury finds that diseased came to his death through the influence of liquor and carelessness on his part and while lying on West bounded track, and killed by train No. 1 exonerating the Company from blame.'

A passing car sent a spray of mud-spots over a nicely browned tray of waffles at a Philadelphia corner stand. "By hokey, look at that!" cried the disgusted proprietor. Then, instantly collecting his wits, he cried to an apprentice hand: "Sugar dem spots off quick!"

Could the figures be gathered and compared, people who think the modern modes of travel involve danger would be surprised. The old stage coaches, it is claimed, killed and maimed vastly more than the railroads do. From the reports of the number of passengers killed now there would seem to be more danger in staying at home than going by rail.

Our Story Teller.

A MOTHER'S DARING FREAK.

The younger residents of Minnesota have no personal knowledge of the perils and experience of the early settlers of that extremely prosperous section of the West.

About forty years ago not half a dozen white families occupied the whole stretch of the Lake Pepin shore, on the Minnesota side upon either side, for the matter of that.

Lake Pepin should scarcely be designated by that title, as it is only a widening of the Mississippi river, commencing a little below St. Paul, and extending some thirty or forty miles.

Upon the Minnesota shore, and within two miles of the point where the stream becomes narrow again, stood the cabin of John Sloan, who had taken up lumbering for his occupation rather than hunting. This employment often called him away from home for weeks together, cutting his logs on the upper stream and getting them ready to float down into the "Father of Waters" and from thence to market as the ice broke up each spring.

During each absence John was obliged to leave his brave little wife Hattie, and his little boy behind. But he never dreamed that harm would come to them, for they were surrounded by the Minnesotas, who were all friendly. Neither did the mother fear, and all day long her happy song could be heard, in chorus with the crowing of her bright-eyed treasure.

It was spring, and the weather was becoming quite warm, although the ice still clung to the lake. Just at dusk one evening, Hattie Sloan saw some dark object dart pass her door, and going to gaze after it, she saw it disappear down the bank. But she felt sure it was an Indian. An hour after, she distinctly saw the same figure near the cabin, but it as quickly disappeared.

Alarmed at this, she closed and barred her door, and then her windows. To see an Indian was no cause of alarm but to see one act in this manner was sufficient reason for fear, for no friendly savage would do it.

Looking carefully to the charing of of her rifle, the mother placed it near her when she retired.

During the night she heard the door and windows tried, and her heart beat as it had never done before. She drew her babe close to her bosom, and never before had it seemed so dear to her, for she felt as if something dreadful was going to happen. She almost felt that she was about to lose it. But she rallied, and put on a mother's strength for any emergency in case of attack.

But the night passed, and she was no more disturbed. It had been a sleepless one for her, but she did not feel wearied, and as the sun came out, her spirits arose, and like the free birds, could not refrain from giving vent to her glad songs of praise and of joy.

Suddenly the door was darkened, and, looking up, the mother saw a large savage standing in the entrance. A second glance satisfied her that he was a Sioux, a portion of which tribe resided upon the opposite side of the lake, but never ventured to cross, for they were detested by the Minnesotas.

Mrs. Sloan controlled herself to the best of her ability, and asked:

"What do you want in my cabin?"

"You—white-squaw," replied the savage, promptly.

"You want me!" repeated the woman, in evident surprise.

"Yes, and me have you too."

"If you are caught on this side, you will be killed."

"Me no be caught; there be no Minnesotas near. Pale-face must go with me now," and the wretch made a movement toward the woman.

"But there are Minnesotas around!" cried Mrs. Sloan. "Yonder come's six."

The savage sprang to the door to ascertain if this was true. The poor mother did not know that such was the case. She had only said this in order to turn aside the attention of the monster while she could procure her rifle. But the Sioux had evidently seen something at which he had taken alarm, for when she turned, he had disappeared.

During the remaining portion of the day the mother kept the rifle constantly by her side, resolved to shoot the wretch down the instant he again appeared in her door-way. But he did not come.

The father had promised to be at home on that day, and poor Hattie congratulated herself that she would have a protector by the time darkness came on. It came, but no father came, and once more did the lone woman close and bar her doors and windows, and prepare for a night of watchfulness, if necessary. But she heard no sound to create any suspicion and toward morning she fell into a profound slumber. Even then the light of morning was bursting through her window, although the candle in the apartment had not yet been distinguished.

Suddenly a human form appeared, creeping from under her bed. It was the Indian. He had slipped into the house, unseen, during a moment's absence of its mistress, here concealed himself, and remained until the moment he thought a fitting one.

Like a creeping panther he came forth, and now stood, with gleaming eyes gazing upon the mother. Then he lifted the infant tenderly from its resting place and wrapped it beneath his warm blanket.

This done, he reached the door, opened it, and started for the lake, saying as he did so:

'She follow little papoose to other side.'

The savage at once stepped upon the frozen lake. He had not proceeded a dozen yards from shore when there came a terrible crashing. The ice was broken up. It started from the shore and divided into ten thousand cakes which went floating down the stream. On one of these stood the Indian, still holding the infant to his bosom.

Looking toward the cottage, he saw the mother emerge, and he held the infant high in the air.

The mother saw her treasure, and understood all. She also saw the condition of the ice. She tried to drag her boat into the water, but she could not move it. So she hesitated no longer, but, reaching the bank, she leaped upon a cake of ice, and from thence to another, and so onward, until she was now within a few feet of the savage. She had run a fearful risk to reach this point but she did not think of danger. She had resolved to rescue her darling, or die in the effort.

But now there was an open space of water between herself and the Indian. And yet she saw that the cakes of ice were slowly nearing each other. She watched the fiend with an eagerness which spoke of some terrible resolve, and he evinced a little uneasiness when he saw that gaze.

Nearer and nearer came the cakes. And now they were close together. The mother made a spring.

Of course the savage thought her first movement would be to clutch for her infant. Such was not the case however. Her keen eyes had perceived a knife which the savage wore in his belt. She seized the hilt and drew it forth, and then, quick as the lightning's flash, she plunged it thrice into the back of the demon, who threw up his hands, uttered a terrible cry, and then plunged headlong beneath the water, disappearing entirely from view. Of course he dropped the infant. The mother had anticipated this, and caught her darling. But the savage fell against her, and she too, was thrown into the water. She struggled and placed her child back upon the ice, and then clung to the edge of the cake, but she could not gain surface for another was pressing hard against her.

But her joy was great at this moment to hear voices upon the shore. Her husband had arrived and saw her condition. With the assistance of friends it was an easy matter to launch the boat, and the mother and infant were rescued.

There was joy in that cabin.

A Kentuckian in a Fix.

The following incident, which actually occurred, shows the depth of verdancy which is existent in some unfortunate individuals. A native of a back county in Kentucky came into the city on the Southern road a few days ago to "see the sights" and to purchase one or two Christmas presents. He hadn't been in the city more than half an hour before he loaned a pleasant, well-dressed stranger $35 on the promise of the latter to return the amount as soon as he cashed a check. The Kentucky man waited patiently at Fourth and Central avenue, but the stranger came not.

In an hour the man from the country became slightly uneasy, in two hours he was actually suspicious, in three hours he was convinced that he had been duped. The $35 was all the money he had, and he walked sadly back to the Grand Central depot, where he related his wrongs to Officer White. The big copper advised him to go home before some one borrowed his pants.

'But I kyan't go home,' said Kentuck. 'I ain't no money to go on. I'm dead broke.'

'Go up to the Mayor's office,' advised a sympathetic hackman; 'maybe he'll give you a free pass home if you sing him a nice song.'

Kentuck looked doubtfully at his counselor, and meditated for 10 minutes as he walked up and down squirting tobacco juice right and left.

"Blamed if I know what to do!" he remarked at last.

"Better do as I said," repeated the hackman. "Go up to the Mayor, sing him a nice song about your trouble, and he'll fix you up wid a pass,

Kentuck again transfixed his adviser with an eye of mistrust. Something was troubling him besides his loss. At last, with a heavy sign and an inimitable drawl, he remarked: "Stranger, I kyan't sing."

—on Saturday the weather was delightfully cool and invigorating. Had there only been a little snow it might almost have been taken for the winter season.

THE HUSBAND REPENTED.

New York Evening Sun,

Apropos of the recent discussion in an exchange as to the best method of keeping giddy husbands at home at nights, comes the following anecdote; "A little woman uptown, whose honeymoon waned three years ago, discovered to her sorrow that her husband took more interest in "a man who called on important business just as I was leaving the office," than in his home life. After puzzling her pretty head for many lonely evenings, she hit at last upon a plan to startle her liege lord into repentance.

One night after the little bronze clock had sounded forth a dozen chimes, the husband entered the flat in the condition usual to gentlemen who devote themselves too assiduously to their offices. He found on the table a note addressed to himself, informing him that his spouse had gone to the opera with "a friend."

Stifling a word which is not found in the ritual, he sank into a chair and gazed vacantly into the fire. Remorse entered his heart and he murmured an audible vow that he would never, no never, in italicized capitals, go out at night without his dear little wife. Was his repentance too late—has his wife's heart already hardened toward him? Who was this "friend" anyhow? He would go to the Metropolitan and escort her home himself. He arose excitedly and started for the door, but his progress was arrested by a pair of laughing black eyes that peeped at him from behind the portieres. That was six months ago, and since then a fond husband has discovered that his darling is even more entertaining than she was in anti-nuptial days.

His Store Was Burned.

Congressman Billy Mason, of Chicago, has a way of pointing a moral and adorning a tale with a story. The Washington Post recalls this one: Last election Billy was discussing President Cleveland's tariff message. "His notion that the country was all burning up for tariff reform," said the Illinois Representative, 'reminds me of a Hebrew named Geisenheimer, who lived out at Joliet. About two weeks after the holidays he came up to Chicago and registered at the Palmer House. He kept himself somewhat conspicuously in the public eye until 10 p. m. As that hour approached he glued his eye to the big marble clock in the rotunda, and on the dot he rushed up to the clerk's desk and demanded in excited tones:

'Ish dere a delegram for me?'

'No, Mr. Geisenheimer, there is no telegram for you.'

'That satisfied him for another ten minutes, when he rushed in and asked?'

'Ish dere a delegram for me?'

'No, sir, no telegram.'

'Ten minutes later in he jumped.

'Vere is dot delegram for Mr. Geisenheimer?'

'The clerk had got about tired by this time.

'There is no telegram for you. When one comes I'll send it to your room.

'All right.'

'But in a quarter of an hour in bounced Mr. Geisenheimer as red hot for a telegram as ever. The clerk turned him down and then got ready for the next attack. He folded a blank message, put it in a telegraph envelope, sealed it, and addressed it to Mr. Geisenheimer. He was after it as sharp as a pike in ten minutes. With eager hands he tore open the envelope, drew out the blank, and as he opened it, rolled up his eyes and exclaimed:

'Mein Got, mein Got, my shtore ish all burnt oop!'

An Editors Apology.

We apologize for all mistakes made in all former issues, and say they were inexcusable, as all an editor has to do is to hunt news, and clean the rollers and set type and sweep the floor and pen short items and fold papers and write wrappers and make the paste and fold the papers and talk to visitors and distribute type and carry water and saw wood and read the proofs and correct the mistakes and hunt the shears to write editorials and dodge the bills and dun delinquents and take cussings from the whole force and tell our subscribers that we need money. We say we have no business to make mistakes while attending to these little matters and getting our living on gopher-tail soup flavored with imagination, and wearing old shoes and no collar and a patch on our pants, obliged to turn a smiling countenance to the man who tells us our paper isn't worth $1 a year anyhow and that he could make a better one with his eyes shut.—Sauk Rapids Sentinel.

The fatal illness of the infant king of Spain has attracted more interest in Europe than any other event of the past week, and various rumors are afloat as to what the Spanish people will do when the baby king is gone and his sister, Mercedes, aged 9, ascends the throne. It is the opinion of the London correspondent of the New York Times that the republic will not be proclaimed, or that if an attempt to do so is made it will fail. M Castellar, the great republican statesman of Spain, has come to the conclusion that his countrymen are not yet prepared for self-government, and he has abandoned the hope of a republic in his lifetime, though he means to keep up the process of education. As to Don Carlos, it is believed he will be easily checked should he raise the standard of rebellion, while the suggestion is thrown out that his son may eventually marry the young queen and thus settle several difficulties.

Women have not much concern about the fit of a boot if it is small enough for them.

Exquisite sashes, with and without fringes, are among the importations for Winter.

Hand printed delaines for tea gowns are among the prettiest fabrics imported this year.

"Tea jackets" and "blouse bodices" are necessary to a fashionable woman's wardrobe.

The new shapes in china—old pieces like salad dishes, fish plates, chocolate pots and ice cream sets—are particularly unique this season.

"Through no Fault of Mine."

Among the cases I found on my calendar recently was one that I shall style Bodkins versus Podkins. When I called it the attorney for the plaintiff promptly answered "Ready."

"I am not prepared to go on this morning," said the opposing counsel, "and I ask for an adjournment."

"On what ground?" I asked.

"I have not been able to prepare for the case, owing to—ah, well—family complications," he replied. "I have a—well—an increase in my family this morning—my wife has presented me with a son. I really have not had any time to devote to this case."

"I don't consider that a valid legal excuse for an adjournment," exclaimed the plaintiff's attorney. "I congratulate the gentleman upon the auspicious event, but I think he should be made to go on, I have brought all my witnesses into court at considerable expense, and I am entitled to a trial."

Podkins' representative arose, bubbling over with wrath: "Your Honor," he cried, "should my client be injured by an accident that has happened through no fault of mine? Ah! I have not been able to attend to his business.

The adjournment was granted.

Hold it to the Light.

The man who tells you confidentially just what will cure your cold is prescribing Kemp's Balsam this year. In the preparation of this remarkable medicine for coughs and colds no expense is spared to combine only the best and purest ingredients. Hold a bottle of Kemp's Balsm to the light and look through it; notice the bright, clear look; then compare with other remedies. Large bottles at all druggists, 50 cents and $1. Sample bottle free.

Never.

A young lady asked an editor this extraordinary question: "Do you think it right for a girl to sit on a young man's lap, even if she is engaged?" Whereupon the editor told this extraordinary lie: "We have had no experience in the matter referred to." Why didn't he say: "If it was our girl and our lap, yes; if it was another girl and our lap, yes; but if it was our girl and another fellow's lap, never! never! never!"

MARRIAGE AND CIVILIZATION.

The enemies of proper marriage assume that Christianity is hopelessly discredited. Well, for the sake of argument, let us suppose that this is so. Does it follow that the ethics of marriage, which, as a matter of fact, the modern world has received from Christianity, are also discredited? I reply, most certainly not. The ethics taught by Christianity are independent of those mysteries, and would subsist to all eternity, though Christianity and all religions were swept into oblivion.

The moral law is ascertained, not from the announcements of prophets, apostles, evangelists, but from a natural and permanent revelation of the reason. The great fundamental truths of ethics are necessary, like the great fundamental truths of mathematics. So much concerning Christianity and ethics in general. And now, of the ethics of marriage in particular. The earliest form of marriage known to us was that in which the bride was obtained by capture; her volition counting for nothing, her consent not even sought. Then, she was accounted a mere chattel. Now, she is recognized as a person: her liberty inviolable; her will free; to be won, she must be wooed. Now, marriage is a contract, and is subject to the ethical rules that govern all contracts.

Marriage is something more than a mere contract. We may put aside the ecclesiastical view of it. Quite apart from that view, from those considerations, we must so account for it. For it is a symbol of the mystery whereby our spiritual life is joined to our body frames. Nay, it is more than that. It is the outward, visible, eminently sensuous means whereby we attain to the inward spiritual grace of the purest joys, the most unselfish affections that this world offers. It is a natural sacrament, of which the husband and the wife are themselves the ministers.

It is the accomplishment of the man's manhood and of the woman's womanhood; the blending of the two personalities in a social organism embracing their whole existences. But the personalties, though equal, are diverse. More there are far-reaching phychical differences. The old platonic fable that the women is the other half of the man is profoundly true. She is the complement of him and he of her.

Let the perfect ideal of indissoluble marriage be once definitively rejected by the world, and human society will inevitably fall back to that wallowing in the mire from which the Church rescued it. And in whatever degree you tamper with this idea and derogate from its strictness, in that degree do you demoralize woman. Yes, and man, too; for assuredly he speedily sinks to her level. The moral tone of society, I say, depends upon the chastity of woman. And the chastity of woman depends upon the absolute character of marriage.

A New Dog Wanted.

A farmer from Taylor township, who was on the market a day or two ago and inquiring for a dog, was taken to a stable near by to see one which was for sale.

"Wouldn't give you two cents for that animal" he said after a hasty glance.

"You wouldn't! Do you know what sort of a dog that is?"

"I do. He's half bull and half Newfoundland."

"That's correct, and if you can get a better dog I'd like to see him."

"Too big."

"But I thought a farmer wanted a big dog."

"Oh no; and he has a long tail too."

"What has that to do with it?"

"A heap sir. I've had ten dogs in five years. Every one has met his death by fooling with tramps. The last one was as big as this and he tackled two tramps at the gate. One held him by the tail and the other kicked him to death."

"Then what kind of a dog are you after?"

"A small, bob-tailed dog, with his ears cut short and too cowardly to bite. I just want him to give the alarm when a tramp is about and let me take care of results.

'Aren't tramps afraid of dogs? queried a man standing by.

'Not a whit, sir. Take it along our road for a distance of five miles and they kill a dog every week. Two tramps in company, and they generally go that way, will make short work of the best dog we can get. There's got to be a new deal. We've got to have a dog made to order—something which can dodge a stone, evade a club, get away from a corn knife and hold a tramp at the gate until the folks in the house can load the shotgun. If you hear of any such animal let me know.,

A PLEASANT SURPRISE PARTY.

FIFTY FRIENDS FLOCK FROM FAR AND NEAR TO THE HOME OF REV. SARVIS.

"It is more blessed to give than to receive," and the truth of this biblical saying was never more fully demonstrated than it was on Friday evening when about half a hundred of the friends and admirers of Rev. G P Sarvis flocked to his home at Pleasant Gap and invaded the premises taking the Reverend gentleman and his most amiable wife completely by surprise. It was a genuine, old fashioned surprise party. The persons composing the same were mostly from the Forge but quite a number of Bellefonter's were present.

Yes, they were laden down with good things of every description. As a surprise greeting to Rev. Sarvis the assembled party took a new set of harness, of superior make, and a new whip. To Mrs. Sarvis a purse of twelve dollars. And of all the other good things to stock the family larder, it was simply wonderful. Boxes and baskets full; bags full and buckets full, and then they did not forget to prepare for the sociability of the occasion as was fully proven when the proper time came. Four gallons of oysters were brought forward with a full supply of crackers and, when these were prepared, with a full complement of cake, etc., a very delicious and appetizing supper was served to the entire party. It was one of the most pleasant occasions indulged for many days and the faithful and hardworking pastor and his family will long remember it as such.

Work of the Flood Relief Committee.

At the meeting of the Flood Relief Committee held in Philadelphia on Thursday afternoon the following interesting facts were made public:

The total cash received by the commission was $2,982,072.68, of which amount $1,225,872.83 came from every section of the country and the world; $600,000 from Philadelphia; $560,000 from Pittsburg and $516,199.85 from New York. Johnstown and vicinity received $2,330,393.69 of this amount. The other expenditures were as follows: Relief for other localities $232,274,45; distributed as expressly directed by donors, $2,271,-85; office expenses at Harrisburg, $1,398,-42; general expenses, $1,318,70; first payment on annuities to orphans, $16,-100; making a total of cash expended of $2,683,747.11, leaving a balance on deposit at Harrisburg of $218,335,57. In addition to this balance at Harrisburg there is an undistributed fund in Johnstown at present of $36,384.03, and there has been appropriated to other parts of the State $17,735.55. After this is taken out there remained at the time of the meeting yesterday an available balance of $236,974.05. This was reduced at yesterday's meeting to $70,631.40, by the payment of claims amounting to $22,-442.65 and other appropriations.

THE ACTUAL LOSS OF LIFE.

The commission has made a most careful investigation to ascertain the actual number of lives lost in the disaster, and now at this late day they are of the opinion that 2,500 is the highest figure at which it can be placed. It has been definitely ascertained that 2,280 persons disappeared from the valley of the Conemaugh. The bodies of 1,675 of this number have been recovered and identified, 644 bodies have been recovered and are unknown and the remainder, 605, are missing. The commission has gathered the bodies of all the unclaimed dead that were buried hastily at the time of the flood and reinterred them in the Grand View Cemetery at Johnstown. For this purpose a plot of ground consisting of 22,000 square feet has been purchased. In this plot there are now buried 741 bodies, of which the names of only 87 are known. During this work of reinterment especial efforts were made to identify the bodies and for this purpose special trains were run for miles around to Johnstown by the railroads and fifty-two additional bodies were recognized. The bodies that were recovered were picked up all the way from the Conemaugh to Westmoreland county and one was found down the Mississippi river at Cairo.

Fire in Milesburg.

Saturday morning about 8 o'clock the coach works of Mr. Cramer, in Milesburg, caught fire and, before assistance could be had were completely enveloped in flames.

The fire, having gained such a start, could not be gotten under control and the entire shops were destroyed. We have been unable to get the loss or the insurance, if there was any.

Governor Curtin Better.

Ex-Governor Andrew G Curtin, of this place, who was stricken with influenza on Wednesday at the Hotel Stratford, Philadelphia, is now improving, and his permanent recovery is only a question of a few days.

He Braced the Wrong Man.

A reporter was on his way across City Hall Park on Christmas Eve when a very small, very raged, very disconsolate boy accosted him:

"Say, Boss, I hain't got no father, nor no mother, an' I'm broke. Can't you help me out for suthin' to eat?"

The young man made the examination that prudence and economy demand in such cases, and ended with giving the lad fifteen cents. One hour later he started home, and was again accosted by the same boy with the same story. The youngster hung his head and tears were in his voice. The young man put his hand under the boy's chin raised his face and said:

"Look here, sonny, don't you remember that you struck me this way an hour ago?"

The boy looked up recognized his benefactor, and changing his demeanor sullenly replied:

"Oh, dat was for supper an' lodging. Now I wants fifteen cents to buy some papers wid in de mornin'."

It was the night before Christmas but he didn't get it.

LIPPINCOTT'S MAGAZINE has introduced an agreeable diversity in its department of fiction by engaging some stories from popular English novelists, who are also widely known on this side of the Atlantic. The February number contains a complete novel, "The Sign of the Four; or, the Problem of the Sholtos," by A. Conan Doyle. The author of that remarkable novel, "Micha Clarke: His Statement," which has created such a sensation both in England and here, needs no introduction to American readers. Mr. Doyle's last story is even more powerful and brilliant than Micah Clarke." The scene laid in London, and the hero is a detective, whose marvellous ingenuity in solving a seemingly insoluble mystery is portrayed with so graphic a pen that Conan Doyle must take rank as a leader in the line of such writers as Poe, or Gaboriau, or Anna Katharine Green. Among detective stories "The Sign of the Four" is bound to become a classic.

In the forthcoming Midwinter (February) Century, the fortieth and final instalment of "The Life of Lincoln" will appear. It is by mere accident that this instalment and the supplementary papers deal, not only with the "End of the Rebellion" and "Lincolns' Fame," but with the "Capture of Jefferson Davis." The supplementary papers on 'The Pursuit and Capture of Jefferson Davis" are by General James Harrison Wilson, who had charge of the United States forces on that occasion, and by William P. Stedman, who was one of the Fourth Michigan Cavalry, and who was an eye witness of the capture. In the same number of The Century will appear an "Open Letter" by Dr. Terry of Columbus, Georgia, telling of Mr. Davis's indignation at an offer made to him of an invention, consisting of explosive hollow ron castings resembling coal, which was ntended to be used in blowing up Federal gunboats.

It Tells the Story.

A newspaper may boom a town through its editorial and news columns, but the critical investor looks to the advertising columns for substantial evidence of push and life. To him they are a barometer; they measure the intensity of the public warmth; they are the pulse which indicates the healthy or unhealthy condition of the collective body of people; they tell him what he wishes to know—whether or not the community is up to the times in business matters.

Will Go to the Supreme Court.

The Renovo Record learns that Messrs McCormick and Kress, counsel for the defense in the late Charles Cleary murder trial, have advised that the case be carried up to the Supreme Court of the State, for the purpose of obtaining a new trial, and that preparations are now being made for that purpose by the relatives and friends of the prisoner. They entertain strong hopes for success.

TO ADVERTISERS!

How to Get the Most Service for the Money!

The Advertiser who would be willing to pay twenty-five cents for every family who could be "educated" up to the value of his goods would thus devote $3,000,000 to educate the 12,000-000 families which make up the 60,-000,000 of the United States. This sum would do the business thoroughly in a year, for it is sufficient to pay for the insertion of a full column in every issue of every publication, and for resetting the matter, making it new in every issue of each separate publication. We will receive and execute the contract.

$5,000 One of the most successful Advertisers we ever had always ordered his advertisements in this way, "Get the best service you can for me for $5,000," leaving every detail to us. We were thus enabled to say to a Publisher, if you put this in at a large reduction from your rate it will be no criterion for further transactions. It was a surprise to find ourselves so often able to contract for the insertion of that particular advertisement at half rates, in papers which would not permit us to OFFER their columns at a penny's deviation from a printed schedule. The advertising rates of one New York paper are double those of another which has twice the circulation of the first. Similar discrepancies are not uncommon. The advertisement intrusted to us to be placed in accordance with our judgment often does double service for half the money. A dollar for twenty-five cents.

$1,000 If we are given authority to insert advertisements to a limited amount, in such mediums as ofier inducements which seem to us specially favorable, we shall not abuse the confidence reposed in us, and shall render statements of whatever is done (if anything) from day to day. When TRUSTED with the placing of an advertisement, we are put upon honor, and are bound in honor to give the best service possible for the money to be used.

$500 Leading Newspapers, especially the leading Agricultural Nswspapers, frequently issue large special editions (of twenty, fifty, a hundred, or even five hundred thousand copies,) and eslicit advertisement orders from us on terms which would often be accepted by our patrons if there was time to invite attention to the matter; but the question must generally be decided before there would be time to write and receive a reply, and often the caso cannot be fully stated within the limits of a letter.

$250 Prepare a small advertisement and send with check for $250, or any other sum. The practice of asking the Agent to name his papers in advance compels him to name such as are well known, otherwise there is reason to suspect that his judgment is biased;—and the best papers do not like to have their rates quoted below their schedule.

$100 The advertiser who sends his advertisements asking for the best service possible for one hundred dollars, will often get from five to fifty per cent more service for his money, than he would had he required us to tell him in advance exactly what service we would promise; for when an estimate has been given its plan and specifications must, in a general way at least, control the advertising to be done: It ties the Agent's hands and prevents his giving his patrons TO-DAY a better service than he could have promised yesterday, because yesterday the opportunity had not presented itself: to-morrow it may have passed! Some publications are used more economically on contracts for a single issue; in others insertion for a month may be had as cheaply as for a single week but in furnishing an estimate in advance, if the Agent attempts to go into details, his correspondence becomes voluminous and the advertiser confused.

$50. If you are in the habit of occasionally inserting a small advertisement in a few papers, investing a few dollars and carefully noting the result; we desire you to make trial of our Advertising Bureau, sending us the advertisement and the money, leaving the selection of the papers to us, and judging of the service rendered by results rather than by names, circulation claims or prices. To make up careful estimates calls for much work. It don't pay to make them indiscriminately for every applicant. If such estimates as are asked for were always given the Advertiser who wished to expend $50 would frequently find himself in posession of a scheme which it would cost $500 or possibly $5,000 to carry out.

$10. We devote all necessary care to placing small orders for Advertising:—even the smallest! Time is saved by sending check with the order. Often the Advertiser is not possessed of sufficient information on the subject to enable him to judge of the merits of an estimate for advertising, and he decides by the footings of the figures whether he will or will not do the work. Yet the estimate binds the Agent and makes it improper for him to make any variation in its specifications, however much his judgment may point to material changes which ought to be made. This is specially liable to be the case when the order comes a considerable time after the estimate was made.

WASHINGTON EVENTS.

First Meeting of the Special Committee on the World's Fair.

SENATOR EDMUNDS SICK.

The Surplus in the Treasury Reduced to About Twenty Millions, and the Secretary Suspends the Purchase of Four Per Cent. Bonds.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—The first meeting of the special committee of the House on the World's fair celebration was held. Mr. Candler, of Massachusetts, the chairman, presided. Although this was looked upon merely as a preliminary meeting, the committee managed to dispose, for the time being, of most of the business before it.

The Springer resolution of yesterday, providing that on Thursday, Jan. 23, the house shall decide on the location of the exposition, was referred to a special committee of three, to consist of the chairman of the committee, Mr. Candler, and two other members to be selected by him. The motion for this disposition also provided that the sub-committee should report back to the full committee on Thursday.

The question of the best method for selecting a site for the fair caused considerable discussion, although there was a dearth of ideas in connection with it, and it was finally resolved to refer the matter to the sub-committee. The discussion showed that no member had prepared any plan of procedure. After deciding that no oral arguments should be heard, the committee adjourned.

Mr. Candler appointed Messrs. Hitt, of Illinois, and Flower, of New York, as the other two members of the sub-committee.

Bond Purchases Suspended.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—The bond purchases during the past week, amounting to nearly $9,000,000, have resulted in a reduction of the available treasury surplus to about $20,000,000. The secretary of the treasury has therefore decided to suspend the purchase of 4 per cent. bonds until further notice. The purchase of 4½ per cent. bonds will, however, be continued as heretofore. The purchase of 4 per cents. will be resumed shortly, as it is estimated that the surplus will be increased to $40,000,000 by the 1st of April.

The secretary of the treasury has under consideration the further purchase of this class of bonds in the reduction of the amount of public funds held by national banks, and the issuance of another call on the banks for an additional surrender is delayed accordingly. The matter will be settled, however, in a few days, probably this week.

Suffering from the Epidemic.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—Senator Edmunds is suffering from an attack of the prevailing compiaint.

Senator Sherman is still confined to his house, but he expects to be out to-morrow.

Senator Morrill, who has been confined to his home suffering from an attack of influenza, was at the Capitol today.

Boston Shippers Swindled.

BOSTON, Jan. 22.—The Merchants and Shippers' Railway Claim Clearing association is an institution which through socicitors has collected from quite a number of Boston's shipping firms membership fees of $10. The alleged object of the association was to facilitate the movement of freight, carry claims agoinst the railroads, and, in short, to aid their clients in every way to a rapid and correct transaction of their shipping business by means of private marks, etc.

It was claimed by the solicitors that the closest connection existed between the association and the several railroads and express companies. To a shipper of freight the statement was made yesterday that 247 railroads throughout the country are acting in co-operation with the association, also the express companies and steamboat lines. All the New England roads were stated to be in such close connection with the association, save a small connecting line in the northern portion of New England.

An investigation was set on foot yesterday, and this is what the railroads and express companies have to say:

The Boston and Albany: "We never heard of it, and certainly have no such record of private marks."

The general freight agent of the Boston and Maine systems says: "We do not know anything of it officially."

At the Old Colony, Fitchburg and New York and New England roads any knowledge of the association was denied.

Edward Sands and Mr. Hartwell, of the Adams Express, and General Superintendent Dwight, of the American Express, also denied any knowledge of the association.

The Danbury Lockout.

DANBURY, Conn., Jan. 22.—Twelve hundred hat finishers, employes of fourteen of the sixteen hat factories here, have been locked out as a result of the order issued by the manufacturers. The Finishers' association will hold a meeting, when it will be determined whether or not the finishers of Merritt & Co.'s factory, who are violators of an agreement between the Hat Finishers' association and the Manufacturers' association, which violation is the cause of the trouble, will maintain their position or return to work without condition. If they decide on the former course, 5,000 hatters will be out of employment in two days, and Danbury's principal industry will be paralyzed.

A Land Slide Strikes a Train.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Jan. 22.—A freight train on the Reading road was derailed by a land slide near this place. Ten cars were thrown into a creek. Engineer Hoffman was killed. The fireman and one of the brakemen were severely injured.

The Gas Turned On.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 22.—G. W. Sartorious, of Pocomoke City, 60 years of age, was found dead in bed in the Clarendon hotel this morning. The gas was turned on, but whether accidentally or purposely is not known.

The Application Denied.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The application to commit the publishers of The Freeman's Journal and The London New York Herald for contempt in commenting on the O'Shea-Parnell case was denied.

Lost $3,000 Last Season.

TORONTO, Ont., Jan. 22.—The Toronto Baseball association held its annual meeting and elected officers for the ensuing year. The financial statement showed a loss of $3,090 on last season's operations.

PARIS, Jan. 22.—Gen. Berge will represent President Carnot at the funeral of the late Duke of Aosta.

PASTOR ERNST ARRESTED.

He Is Believed by His Friends to Be Mentally Unsound.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 2 .—The troubles of Pastor Ernst culminated in his arrest on a warrant issued at the instance of Mr. F. C. M. Lautz, of whom Mr. Ernst is charged with borrowing $600 on false representations.

The pastor was locked up until on application of some friends he was released on his own recognizance. Mr. Lautz says that Mr. Ernst came to him to get the loan, and stated that he had $3,800, the proceeds of sales of tickets, but wanted $600 so as to hold $4,400 in bank and thus be able to inspire confidence in the festival. He gave Mr. Lautz a note for the amount, and when the note became due he invented a number of excuses for not paying it.

Mr. Lautz threatened him with prosecution and he paid $300 on the note. His subsequent misrepresentations so annoyed Mr. Lautz that he began prosecution.

It is also learned that early last year Mr. Ernst borrowed $500 from a member of his flock, falsely representing the use to which he intended to put it. The money was not paid back until last August, and then only after considerable trouble had been made about it.

The most charitable view of the pastor's misconduct is taken by one of the festival committee, who says he believes Mr. Ernst is mentally unbalanced; that he undertook too much in connection with the festival and got crazy over it.

GOVERNOR ABBETT INAUGURATED.

An Immense Procession and Great Cheering Far Along the Route.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 22.—Leon Abbett was for the second time inaugurated governor of New Jersey in the presence of an immense throng of people. The procession, composed of 5,000 Democrats in clubs and associations, marched from the State house to the Opera house, where the inaugural ceremonies were held. In the procession were three Democratic associations from Philadelphia.

From the time the governor-elect and his party were taken in escort the procession was continuously cheered, and when the Opera house was reached so great was the crowd that it was with difficulty the party made its way into the building.

The inaugural exercises opened by prayer by the Rev. Samuel Studdeford, of this city. The oath of office was administered by Chief Justice Beasley. Governor Green then delivered up the great seal of the state and it was gracefully accepted by the new governor, who was then presented to President Nevins of the senate and to the members of the legislature.

In replying to Governor Green's address in turning over the great seal to his successor, Governor Abbett said that he hoped he could hand the seal down to his successor as clean and unsullied as he received it. Governor Abbett then read his inaugural address.

Governor Ladd's Message.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 22.—The message of Governor H. W. Ladd, presented to the general assembly, is one of the most elaborate and strongly expressed documents ever presented to a Rhode Island legislature. The building of a new state house to replace the present structure in Providence, which is 130 years old, is strongly urged. The high license law is considered at length, and one or two vital recommendations made. The ballot reform law, which goes into effect at the April state elections, receives commendation, and it is suggested that the law be applied to all elections as well as state and congressional elections; that state armories for the militia be established; that the supervision of railroads be more complete, and a railroad commission of three be made instead of a commissioner; that the state control the business of foreign investment companies who now have a free run in Rhode Island.

To Demand a General Convention.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—The Herald this morning says: The sensational gossip relative to the finances of the Irish National league—gossip that was started by President Fitzgerald's effort to appoint a secret committee to audit the accounts of Rev. Dr. O'Reilly—is beginning to take the form of a demand for an immediate convention of the league. Chicago Irishmen prominent in league affairs are ready to unite with the New York party, led by Roderick Kennedy and Patrick Gleason, and issue a demand for a general call. They do not expect active co-operation on the part of Fitzgerald and his partners in the Nebraska "trust." On the contrary, they have reason to expect opposition from that source.

Hopelessly Insane.

OSWEGO, Kan., Jan. 22.—Mrs. Davis, arrested in Michigan on the supposition that she was the famous "old Mrs. Bender," one of the noted family of murderers, and brought here for trial, has become insane. The charge has weighed heavily on her mind, and old age, accompanied by the hardships of jail life, has turned her mind. The physicians say she is hopelessly insane. Her trial and that of her daughter are set for the March term of court.

WE WILL EXPLAIN.

The Weekly Mail and Express has agreed with the Grant Monument Association that the entire revenue of the paper from yearly subscriptions of two dollars each will be turned over to the FUND for the erection of a NATIONAL MONUMENT to General Ulysses S. Grant at Riverside Park, New York City. In other words, if you send Two Dollars to the WEEKLY MAIL AND EXPRESS you will receive the paper for a year and your money will be paid over to the GRANT MONUMENT FUND. You will thus receive a full equivalent for your money in a first class weekly newspaper and at the same time you will be helping to forward a noble and worthy cause. The Weekly Mail and Express has further evidenced its earnestness and sincerity in this work by subscribing TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS to the MONUMENT FUND.

The following letters are explanatory:

NEW YORK, Nov. 28, 1889

The arrangements made between the Weekly Mail and Express and the Grant Monument Association meets my hearty approval. The offer of the Weekly Mail and Express is patriotic, and should it be responded to promptly by the citizens of America, the monument will speedily be built at the very site suggested by my husband, and selected by me as the last resting place for his precious remains, the spot where I hope my remains will lie beside his, and where our children unite with me in saying, "HERE ONLY SHALL BE HIS TOMB."

A Counterfeit $5 Note.

A counterfeit $5 United States Treasury note, series 1880, check letter B. Jackson vignette, large red seal, W. S. Rosecrans, register, James W. Hyatt, treasurer, has made its appearance. It is a very poor wood cut production paper soft and thin. The vignette of Jackson is a poor likeness and indistinct; the historical scene is dim, the dog appearing in outline, which in the genuine the dog is very distinct. In the counterfeit note the words "legal tender" appear in skeleton letters; they should appear in shaded letters. The words "bureau of engraving and printing, Washington, D. C." are reversed, beginning at the lower right hand, instead of the upper left hand end.

—Centre county is always ahead. It was not enough to have flowers blooming, trees leafing and snakes crawling, but now the spring lamb has made its appearance and the squeak of the little chick is already heard. It seems to be crowding things, but it is true, never-the-less, and any disbeliever has only to visit the farm of Isaac Haupt in Benner township, to be convinced of the truth of the above.

Will be well illuminated by gas, and stands high and dry, so that the location is a very healthy one. It is furnished with the latest and most modern machinery and fittings. Don't forget to go around on Friday night and see it for yourself.

Nervous Derangement and Constipation.

After years of suffering from nervous derangement and constipation, and after being treated by several leading physicians, from whom I obtained no relief, I was induced to try S. S. S.

Soon after commencing its use, I found my appetite much improved, and that the use of cathartics, which I had taken almost daily for twelve months, was no longer necessary.

Since childhood I have been subject to sick and nervous headaches, but since December 1, 1888, at which time I commenced taking S. S. S. I have had only one attack, and that was when I neglected to take the Specific.

I do not now have to take purative medicines.

Tormenting Skin Disease.

For twenty years I was troubled with a tormenting itching skin disease, which at times caused me great annoyance and loss of sleep. I was treated by the best local physicians, but received no relief from them. I finally concluded to take Swifts Specific (S. S. S.) a half dozen bottles of which effected, what I consider a permanent cure, as I have felt no symptoms of the disease for over a year.

Medical Value of Wines.

As a general rule the use of wine is not necessary for young persons in good health, breathing country air and not exposed to over work. As, however life advances and the circulation becomes languid, natural red wine used in moderation, becomes an essential article and in many cases absolutely necessary, but it must be the pure product of the grapes. And even in the Eastern States the physician meets large numbers of town people, especially women who cannot digest the food and drinks suited to out-door laboring people. In such cases they resort to the beverage of tea which gives rise to a distressing dyspepsia. The wines produced in New Jersey, especially the Burgundy and the Port Grape Wines from Alfred Speer's Vineyards, at Passaic, are the more reliable and the most sought after by physicians and those who have traveled abroad and known what wines are.

Alfred Speer, Passaic, N. J.

[Communicated.] Grains of Gold.

Young men are in general little aware how much their reputation is effected in the public view by the company they keep. The character of their associates is soon regarded as their own.

A Greek maiden being asked what fortune she would bring her husband, replied in the following beautiful and forcible language: "I will bring him what gold cannot purchase; a heart unspotted and virtue without a stain, which is all that descended to me from my parents"—a worthy answer.

Mental training—train the understanding; take care that the mind has a stout and straight stem. Leave the flowers of wit and fancy to come of themselves, sticking them on will not make them grow, you can only engraft them by grafting that which will produce them. Another rule of good gardening may also be applied with good advantage to the mind: Thin your fruit in spring that some of it may come to perfection.

Doing good with money stamps God's image on it and makes it pass current as merchandise of Heaven.

Slanderers are like flies that leap over all a man's good parts to light only upon his sores.

Eupepsy.

This is what you ought to have, in fact, you must have it, to fully enjoy life. Thousands are searching for it daily, and mourning because they find it not. Thousands upon thousands of dollars are spent annually by our people in the hope that they may attain this boon. And yet it may be had by all. We guarantee that Electric Bitters, if used according to directions and the use persisted in, will bring you Good Digestion and oust the demon Dyspepsia and install instead Eupepsy. We recommend Electric Bitters for Dyspepsia and all diseases of Liver, Stomach and Kidneys. Sold at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle by W C Keplinger & Co's Druggist.

To clean tombstones. To polish knives. To clean dishes. To renew oil-cloth. To scrub floors. To whiten marble. To renovate paint. To wash out sinks. To remove rust. To brighten metals. To scour bath-tubs. To scour kettles.

EVERYBODY USES IT.

EVERY ONE FINDS A NEW USE.

The February Wide Awake opens with a good Persian ballad. "Abu Said," by Mary E Bradley, followed by a stirring episode of Western military life by Lieutenant Fremont, entitled "Snow-shoe Thompson." There is an inspiring story of Greek boy-life, by Mrs Knight, "A Boyhood in Athens," showing the effect of keeping a good ideal before a young lad's eyes. G. Hamlen tells a bright instance of a young girl's presence of mind in her story of "The Frogsleigh Mikado," and Mrs. Fremont will interest all readers with her account of "Kit Carson," in the second of her "Will and Way Stories." Grant Allen concludes his serial, "Wednesday the Tenth," in triumph; Stoddard in his serial of "A Rough Boy," is proving that young Gid Granger is "no slouch." The Norse serial by Boyesen comes to a close with the "Viking' sons" from the grip of a real bear. Miss McLeod's second Acadian story is finished. One of the very best of John Brownjohn's stories is given in the School Series, "The Wicked Waterbury Clock." Mrs. White gives artistic girls a good business hint in her article on Dressmaking in the Business Openings" series. Mrs. Claflin's Margaret-Patty letter is full of subtile social wisdom. Alexander Alack's "Confessions of an Amateur Photographer" is piquant reading. "Men and Things" abounds with good original anecdotes and curious lore. The poems of the number are by Mrs. Whiton-Stone, Mary E. Bradley, Mrs. M. F. Butts, Clinton Scollard and Martha Young; "A Sad Case," one of the best of the long poems, is very amusing in text and pictures by Gordon Browne, the popular English artist.

Wide Awake is $2.40 a year. D. Lothrop Company, Publishers, Boston.

Wonders of Human Mechanism.

Science, says Sir James Paget, will supply the natural man with wonders uncounted. The author had once heard Mlle, Janotha play a presto by Mendelssohn. She played 5,595 notes in four minutes and three seconds. Every one of these notes involved certain movements of a finger, at least two, and many of them involved an additional movement laterally as well as those up and down. They also involved repeated movements of the wrists, elbows and arms, altogether probably not less than one movement for each time.

Therefore there were three distinct movements for each note. As there were 24 notes per second, and each of these notes involved three distinct musical movements, that amounted to 72 movements in each second. Moreover, each of those notes was determined by the will to a chosen place, with a certain force at a certain time and with a certain duration. Therefore there were four distinct qualities in each of the 72 movements in each second. Such were the transmissions outward. And all those were conditional on consciousness of the position of each hand and each finger before it was moved, and by moving it of the sound and the force of each touch. Therefore, there were three conscious sensations to every note.

There were 72 transmissions per second, 144 to and fro, and those with constant change of quality. And then, added to that, all the time the memory was remembering each note in its due me and place and was exercised in the comparison of it with others that came before. So that it would be fair to say that there was not less than 200 transmissions of nerve force to and from the brain outward and inward every second, and during the whole of that time judgment was being exercised as to whether the music was being played better or worse than before, and the mind was conscious of some of the motions which the music was intended to inspire.

A man who has practiced medicine for 40 years ought to know salt from sugar; read what he says:

Messrs. F. J. Cheney & Co.—Gentlemen:—I have been in the general practice of medicine for most 40 years, and would say that in all my practice and experience have never seen a preparation that I could prescribe with as much confidence of success as I can Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by you. Have prescribed it a great many times and its effect is wonderful, and would say in conclusion that I have yet to find a case of Catarrh that it would not cure, if they would take it according to directions.

Yours Truly,

EARLY IN THE FIELD, and among the very best of the month's magazines, comes "Peterson" for February. Every lady should see its beautiful steel and wood engravings and its colored fashion plate, which is really an artistic picture. "Rescued by Custer's Men," by Anna Latham, is a thrilling incident of the dashing general and his brave band, told in a very dramatic fashion. The serial by Howard Seely is full of action, and it is interesting to compare its decriptions of American frontier life with the accounts of Parisian society in Mrs. Lucy H. Hooper's admirable novelet, "A Magnificient Marriage." The short stories, miscellaneous articles and poems are all worthy of the highest praise. No household should be without "Petersons" for it always offers a varied and attractive table of contents, and at a price which brings it within everybody's reach. Terms, $2.00 a year. Address, PETERSON'S MAGAZINE, Philadelphia.

The Penns Valley Methodists.

In the Conference News of January 15th Bro. Hicks writes as follows about the condition of the church in Penns Valley:

Our Fourth Quarterly Meeting was remarkable along two lines. First, the All-day Service of the Presiding Elder, Rev. Dr. Hamlin whose Preaching Saturday evening and on the Sabbath captivated us all. We doubt if ever this eloquent and eminently successful minister of our Conference ever did better work or appeared to a better advantage for the cause of the Lord and Methodism than during his visit here in Millheim, Jan. 4th, 5th and 6th. Second, The Lord of hosts was with us in convicting and converting power. The Sunday services wound up in the evening with the joyous healing of a sin-sick soul and a full shout in the "camp of Israel," believers shouted, sinners trembled, seekers weeping, prayed for mercy, the Lord heard,

"And Heaven came down our souls to greet
While glory crowned the mercy seat."

It was one of the most memorable quarterly occasions that Millheim has enjoyed for many years. We have just closed a revival service that was truly a revival in the hearts of our brethren and sisters. Night after night the shouts of happy hearts mingled with the cry for mercy of the unsaved but seeking Twelve have identified themselves with our church in Millheim, which infusion of additional life and zeal encourages the faithful to the church of the years past.

The Quarterly Conference held Jan. 6th made a fair showingof the financial condition of the circuit, though not up to date on the entire charge, prospects are good for reporting no deficiency as to pastoral support. The Penns Valley folks well know how to take care of their pastor; their sunny homes, their cheerful hearts, and the hearty welcome they extend to "the itinerant" as passing from place to place imparts good cheer, hope, and courage.

Our collections—the aggregate will fall short about $5 of last year, but taking into the account that the flood "cleaned up" some of our people pretty well, I see no room for complaint. We are trying to climb up to a higher plane, our lack on the circuit is not ability nor indeed desire, but rather system, grit with an opening for larger supplies of grace. On the circuit are five fine churches, clear of debt, and there are no reasons why Penns Valley should not have a front seat among the circuits of the Conference.

Christopher Columbus' Honeymoon.

We are learning things new and old about America's discoverer. In a lecture by John Fiske before the Lowell cruise last week he said: "It was while Columbus was spending an extended honeymoon on an island 300 miles in the ocean that he conceived and developed the great idea of reaching the east by sailing due west. To him can be given no credit of advancing the theory that the world was round, as Aristotle had expressed such a belief, and it had been adopted by Hipparchus and Ptolemy and later scientists. Columbus's originality consisted in reducing the theory to a practical problem and then solving it. The feature of Columbus's argument that recomended itself to the potentates to whom he applied for assistance in his great undertaking was that the western route to Asia was shorter than that around Africa. There seemed to be no reasonable grounds for believing that be expected to encounter a hitherto unheard of continent although it has been asserted that on a trip he made to Iceland he learned of the previous discoveries of the Norsemen."

The Telephone.

What an extraordinarily successful invention it has proved to be, both to the patron and the patentee. No innovation of man has proved of such universal satisfaction than just the little "hello" box against the wall. And what brought this subject up at this time for discussion is the fact that on Friday we were informed that next summer the Central Pennsylvania Telephone and Supply Company expect to have connection between Williamsport and Philadelphia and then a test on long distance telephoning will be made. What a convenience when persons in Bellefonte can shop by telephone in the fashionable establishments in the Quaker city. Then one evening a man can go to his phone and call up Green's restaurant on Chestnut street and order his breakfast for the next morning and it can be here on the first train. Oh, what is this world coming to, anyway.

And now while we are on the telephone subject we must not forget to mention the handsome cabinet desk, our battery, triple celled, long distance telephone that will soon adorn the private office of Mr. C. N. Harte, of the Centre Iron Company. It is intended to talk long distances and as that company has considerable communication with Williamsport this innovation will be a great facility to the rapid dispatching of important business.

A LADY'S PERFECT COMPANION.

PAINLESS CHILDBIRTH, a new book by Dr. John H. Dye, one of New York's most skillful physicians, shows that pain is not necessary in Childberth, but results from causes easily understood and overcome. It clearly proves that any woman may become a mother without suffering any pain whatever. It also tells how to overcome and prevent morning sickness' swelled limbs, and all other evils attending pregnancy. It is reliable and highly endorsed by physicians everywhere as the wife's true private companion. Cut this out: it will save you great pain, and possibly your life. —Dr. George F. Harris, of Bellefonte Dr. Theo. S. Christ, of State College, and Dr. James A. Thompson, of Martha, have been appointed as a new Pension Examining Board for Centre county.

—There is a very pathetic story told in the three columns of applications for exonerations from borough tax in Johnstown printed in the Tribune. The reasons assigned are "Dead," "Gone." In all human probability no similar list was ever before printed.

—It is said that the winter of 1828 will compare with the present one for warmth and forced vegetation. On Feb. 16 of that year peach trees were in blossom at Bellefonte, and the fact was found in an old Pennsylvania Gazette of Harrisburg.

—The Democrats of this and adjoining counties are booming Mr. W. C. Heinle for State Chairman of the Democratic party, He would undoubtedly make a very good one for that party—one the Republicans would not need to fear—and we advise them to elect him.

—Brother Fiedler is receiving applications, by the dozen, for to be assistant postmaster, chief clerk with big salary, clerk, third clerk, fourth clerk and on down to the post-office clerk, with the—the—the—a salary. Thus far, we are informed, he has engaged or promised nobody.

—Russell H. Conwell, who was booked to lecture in Bellefonte on February 7, will now appear on January 29, scarcely two weeks yet. This is the fourth in the series of Star Course entertainments. Procure your tickets in advance and be sure and go to hear Mr. Conwell, as he is exceptionally grand.

—The State Flood Committee met in Philadelphia on Thursday afternoon and Secretary Kremer submitted his final report. The report showed the direct and indirect distribution of $1,500,000. There is yet $200,000 in the hands of the commission. Governor Beaver presided at the meeting.

—The check forger fiend was in Lock Haven on Wednesday evening. He managed to get a three dollar pair of shoes and eight dollars change on a forged check of C S McCormick, and then left town. He gave himself as hailing from Pine, but it will more likely be Chestnut when they catch him.

—The Lock Haven Democrat did not put in an appearance on Friday. Reason: The entire force was engaged in moving the office from the second to the first floor. A more preferable location in many ways but there will not be half so good a chance in the future to kick spring poets, book agents and dead heads down the stairs. All the same, we presume Joe prefers it thusly.

—Thomas Shaughency, who died on Howard street on Friday morning and was buried Saturday came to Bellefonte in the year 1832, therefore being a resident of this town for over half a century. He came here from county Galway, Ireland, and for a long time was employed in Mann's Axe works. All the Shaughencey's that ever came over the sea came at once to Bellefonte.

—The much advertised marriage ceremony of Mr. Benjamin Cogan and Miss Mollie McGee was celebrated with due fitness in the show window of an Altoona furniture house on Thursday evening. About two thousand people thronged the street to witness the ceremony which was performed by Mayor Turner. The bride and groom immediately entered a carriage and drove to the station taking the next train for Hollidaysburg.

—Volume 1, Number 1 of the Boys' Holiday has put in an appearance as another new publication in the newspaper world. It is published at 320 Pearl St., New York, by the "Holiday Publishing Company." From the initial number we predict for it a great success as it undoubtedly will be if the editors keep it up to its present excellent standard. It is well filled with choice literature suitable for the youth of the land.

—This week the Centre Hall hotel will have a new landlord. The retiring landlord, D J Meyer, has kept this well-known stand for upwards 15 years, and in all that time there has been no cause for complaint, as the house, in every respect, was kept with a view to violate no law, and to give the guests of the house the best entertainment, and in this mine host has entirely succeeded. Mrs. Meyer, too, has proven a model landlady, and she and her department will ever have a pleasant remembrance with all who were her guests.

General Greely, with a plentiful amount of hindsight, is explaining the want of foresight in his weather predictions for some time past. He says the violent storms that passed from west to east across the continent north of the 40th parallel of latitude produced in rushing currents of warm air from the South and caused everything to wabble.

A Kitchen Carol.

Mrs. T. P. Rynder.

"I cannot see why with so much spare time,"
Said my brother last evening at tea,
"Your thoughts do not naturally fall into rhyme"
And ringing through space with charm and with chime
Bring renown to your children and me."

"If I would sit down with my mind at ease,
As free as yours is from care,
I would launch living thoughts on fames high seas
I would fling inspiration on every breeze,
And live in warm hearts everywhere."

So I've determined to write up a suffrage bill—
"Please Pennie do shut that back door,"—
With the wrongs of my sisters my pages I'll fill—
"There Millie, that sugar will certainly spill,
See half of it now on the floor."

O, woman! thou jewel, in setting most rare—
"Yes, darling; I'll sew on a button,"
Thou art worshipped and idolized everywhere—
"Dear me!" there's the door-bell; I wonder who's there;
Pennie run to the parlor and dust every chair—
And don't forget to go after the mutton.

The Poor Laws.

The commission appointed by the Governor to overhaul the poor laws of the state are sending out to the poor overseers of the townships in various counties a circular containing one hundred questions which they are requested to answer and return.

The Grave Gets Tired Yawning.

Seemingly, for certain wretched invalids who toddle along, though always looking as if they were going to die, but omitting to do it. They dry up, wither, dwindle away finally, but in the meantime never having robust health, know nothing of the physical enjoyment the zest of that existance to which they cling with such remarkable tenacity. They are always to be found trying to mend by tinkering at themselves with some trashy remedy, tonic or "pick me up" to give a fillip to digestion or "help the liver." If such misguided folks would resort and adhere to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters it would be well with them. This superb invigorant supplies the stamina that the feeble require, by permanently reinforcing digestion and assimilation. It overcomes nervousness, insomnia, malaria, kidney complaint, billiousness, constipation, rheumatism and neuralgia.

Remarkable Rescue.

Mrs. Michael Curtain, Plainfield, Ill., makes the statement that she caught cold, which settled on her lungs; she was treated for a month by her family physician, but grew worse. He told her she was a hopeless victim of consumption and that no medicine could cure her. Her druggist suggested Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption; she bought a bottle and to her delight found herself benefited from first dose. She continued its use and after taking ten bottles, found herself sound and well, now does her own housework and is as well as she ever was.—Free trial bottles of this Great Discovery at W C Keplinger & Co's Drug Store, large bottles 50c and $1.00

Happy Hoosiers.

Wm. Timmons, Postmaster of Idaville, Ind., writes: "Electric Bitters has done more for me than all other medicines combined, for that had feeling arising from Kidney and Liver trouble." John Leslie, farmer and stockman, of same place, says: "Find Electric Bitters to be the best Kidney and Liver medicine, made me feel like a new man.' J W Gardner, hardware merchant, same town, says: Electric Bitters is just the thing for a man who is all run down and don't care whether he lives or dies; he found new strength, good appetite and felt just like he had a new lease on life. Only 50c. a bottle, at W C Keplinger & Co's Drug Store.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Grapes for Changeable Weather.

The effect of changeable weather on ladies of delicate constitutions is very depressing and serious and something strengthening is needed to assist nature in withstanding the strain. Nothing more effective can be found than Spear's Port Burgandy and Claret Wines, which are in general use in the New York and other hospitals. For sale by druggists.

The Pulpit and the Stage.

Rev. F M Shrout, Pastor United Brethren Church, Blue Mound, Kan., says: 'I feel it my duty to tell what wonders Dr. King's New Discovery has done for me. My Lungs were badly diseased, and my parishioners thought I could live only a few weeks. I took five bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery and am sound and well gaining 26 lbs. in weight."

Arthur Love, Manager Love's Funny Folks Combination, writes: 'After a thorough trial and convincing evidence, I am confident Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, beats them all, and cures when everything else fails. The greatest kindness I can do my many friends is to urge them to try it.' Free trial bottle at W C Keplinger & Co's Drug Store. Regular sizes 50c. and $1.00

EXPERIENCE TAUGHT ME!

And my money paid for it. After having Liver Complaint four years, and spending money on nostrums and doctors who didn't help me, I tried Sulphur Bitters. Six bottles cured me. I shall always use them.—G.N. Butler, Cohoes, N.Y.

About the Weather.

From Friday's DAILY NEWS.

How does this kind of weather suit you, farmer, merchant, laborer and manufacturer? Thursday morning was ushered in with rain and warm weather. About noon it grew colder and by three o'clock in the afternoon it was blowing great guns and some snow. It thus continued the remainder of the afternoon and all night, and this morning, although there are no snow balls lying around, there is a little—very little—snow with which to make some. The old mother earth is frozen solid and the farmer will have to forbear with tilling the soil. The blacksnake will have to crawl under a rail pile, the robbin will fly down to Washington—perhaps it can get an office there—and the dandelion, the poor, little "yaller" dandelion will this morning have the grippe and ere to-morrow's summer sun rises will have drooped its head and died from—"New-Mania." In Lancaster county the farmers will probably leave off haying until to-morrow while up Bald Eagle no more grain will be cut this week.

The spirits of the ice men have been raised to correspond with the fall of the spirits of mercury in the thermometer, but ere twenty-four hours it will be a see-saw game the other way. The thermometer now registers somewhere between the south pole and zero but ere this item is in print it may be playing hide-and-seek with the sun around the equatorial zones. Oh, this is wonderful weather! If a man goes two miles from home in the morning he wants to take with him, in order to be prepared for all the kinds of weather there may be ere he returns, six full suits of winter clothing, a suit of gauze, heavy ulster over coat, mufflers, etc., a duster and palm leaf fan, cap with "earbobs" on, a light straw hat and a full linen suit, fur boots and low gaiters, a bottle of "body warmer" and a freezer of ice cream. If he is going to drive he had better go on a railroad train and ship a horse and sleigh and a buggy to his destination as he may need them both. Oh, yes! this is wonderful weather, but then this is a wonderful people and, perhaps, God is just trying to make the one suit the other, who knows?

Twenty-five Gold Fish.

On Thursday a representative of this paper was invited into the engine room of the Bellefonte water works and shown twenty-five of the handsomest gold fish that can be found anywhere. They belong to the efficient engineer of the station, Mr. Samuel Rine, and they are all about five inches in length. Mr. Rine sent to the government fishery supply station, at Washington, for them, and has only had them for a few days. He has a temporary aquarium constructed in which to keep them until he can make a permanent and more substantial place. He contemplates getting a glass tank about ten feet long, the customary width and height and divide it into apartments; in each separate apartment he will put different species of fish, and when full stocked, Mr. Rine will have the finest aquarium in Bellefonte.

One peculiarity is that among the gold fish are three which have three separate and distinct tails. This fact seems almost incredible but it is true, never-theless, and any man, woman or child who does not believe it can go out and see for themselves.

—"Jason," the famous Huntingdon county correspondent, writes thusly about Centre county's College: "The success of the State College under its new organization is one of the most talked of and admired things in the great state of William Penn. With its lectures, its books, its collections in science and art, its corresponding and honorary members in various parts of the world, the frequent meetings of its many departments, and the ambitious spirit that characterizes it, this institution has stepped to the front rank among the intellectual forces of the state. The simple fact that its membership is now increasing is sufficient to indicate its popularity. The men who are managing the institution wish to make it the centre of the scholarship of the state, not to be maintained out of the tax collections of the state, but out of the pockets of those who regard its benefits as worth what they cost."

Will Apply for a Pardon.

George Evans, of Houtzdale, who was sentenced by the Court in 1881 for twenty years in the Eastern Penitentiary for killing Goodwin while both were serving a term in the county jail in 1881, has made application through his attorney, W I Shaw, for a pardon, which application will be presented to the Pardon Board on January 21st. Evans was but a boy when the crime was committed and it is said that the eight years of his confinement has done much towards his intellectual and moral development, being illiterate when he entered the penitentiary, he can now write a model letter and is a good scholar in all common branches. He is in failing health.

Clearfield Coal Output for 1889.

The coal business over the Beech Creek Railroad in the Clearfield district was very fair during 1889, although not so good as the previous year. The shipments up to the close the year shows that 1,556,930 tons of coal passed over the road, though a falling off in total in favor of last year of 137,565 tons. The total shipments over the Tyrone and Clearfield Railroad, for year 1889, ending December 31, were 3,149,919 tons a decrease from same date of 1888 of 117,159 tons.

Stanley in Africa.

The only authorized and original work of Stanley in Africa, published by H W Kelley, Philadelphia, is now being offered for sale by subscription in this town, by Rev. J Zeigler. Mr. Zeigler has secured the only, individual and supreme right to take subscriptions for this book in the townships of Boggs and Union and the Borough of Bellefonte and any other person appearing and representing him or herself as having the above named book for sale are misrepresentations or else bogus books, as the editor of this paper has been shown the certificate and paper authorizing Mr. Zeigler to sell in the territory named and giving him the exclusive right to sell the only genuine book. Therefore don't buy any other as Mr. Zeigler sells the only genuine work which will be published.

As to the book itself, it is a marvel Handsomely gotten up with superb illustrations and strikingly attractive and handsome binding it is a book that the make up would commend it to the purchase of all, while the contents of it should be studied and read by every loyal American citizen. It is wonderfully accurate and graphical in the description of Africa and all there discovered. It is a complete history, for over a thousand years, of the entire doings of the "Dark Continent," and another great commendable thing in its favor is its price which is exceedingly low. Subscribe for a copy now through Mr. Zeigler.

In Other Counties.

Johnstown democrats organized a club last night.

It is expected that Johnstown's street railway will be in operation by July 1.

The dull monotony of Yeagertown, Mifflin county, was effectually dissipated, for the time being, one day last week by a prize fight between two local pugilists.

Tobias Roddy, an employe of the Cambria iron company at Johnstown, fell into a mass of hot crude yesterday and was badly burned about the face, mouth, head, right arm and legs.

Burglars broke into the store of Chas. R Gregory, at Petersburg, Huntingdon county, on Tuesday night, but got nothing, having been frightened off by the clerk who slept in the building.

The main auditorium of the Johnstown Methodist Episcopal church, which has been closed since the flood, will be reopened on Sunday. The morning sermon will be preached by Rev. J M Ruckley, D. D. L. L. D., editor of the New York Christian Advocate, while Rev. C W Smith D. D., editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate will preach in the evening.

Who is the Most Popular Teacher?

The Pittsburg Times is now engaged in holding a ballot on the most popular school teacher in Pittsburg, the most popular school teacher in Allegheny and the most popular school teacher in anywhere in Eastern Ohio and Western Pennsylvania. The prizes it offers to award are first, a first-class ticket from Pittsburg to any part in Northern Europe and return; second, one complete set of Appleton's American Encyclopedia; third, a fine gold watch.

It is evident that one of these three prizes must go to a teacher outside of Pittsburg and Allegheny and why might Bellefonte not try and get it. There are some very popular teachers in this place and it would be a good thing to have them recognized. The contest in this novel enterprise will continue until March 31. Every issue of The Times has a ballot in it and by obtaining a copy and properly filling it out you can vote for the teacher of your choice. Let the pupils of our public schools try this voting.

Fire Clay Railroad Ties.

The Buffalo Saturday Tidings says: "Adam P. Hopkins, of West Bridgeport, Pa., has invented a new style of posts and railroad ties, which are to be made of burnt fire clay. A dispatch says: "The posts will be burnt very hard, and will have the railing secured by means of nails driven into holes made in the posts when soft, at an angle that will bring the heads together and hold the railing firmly in place. Holes through the ties upon either side of the rail will admit bolts, the upper ends of which will have washers and nuts bearing upon the rail and holding it firmly in position." If there is any merit in this statement, the new invention may prove of value to this section, where we have vast deposits of fire clay. Let us hope the project may prove a worthy one.

—"Farewell dearest," she sighed as she lay on the lapel of his double-breasted coat; "and, George, you may kiss me once, on my forehead, ere you go." "Thanks, Angelina," thoughtfully murmured the young man, "but the last time I kissed a girl on the forehead I got a bang in the mouth." A moment later he left the house, looking as if he had been eating marsh-mallows.

Stenographers and Typewriters on the Pennsylvania Limited.

Recognizing the increasing popularity of the Limited among the business and professional men of the country, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has decided to still further improve the facilities of this wonderful train, and add to its conveniences by introducing a stenographer and typewriter for the service of the passengers.

A bright, young man, expert in both branches of his profession, will be placed on each train between New York and Pittsburg to take the dictation and transcribe on the typewriter the correspondence of the passengers who desire to avail themselves of his services. By this means, a business or professional man can attend to his correspondence en route, and thus secure a great saving of time. A compartment will be fitted up on each train tor this purpose, and the letters will be mailed from the train as they are written. This novel and convenient arrangement will go into effect on February 1st.

The business men already have the advantage of the stock and weather reports on the Limited, the ladies have their maid, their private bath, and their drawing-room in the observation car, and the introduction of an amanuensis will round out the completeness of the train's conveniences to a perfect degree.

No other railroad train in the world offers any one of the four advantages that are provided on the Pennsylvania Limited.

New Fire Brick Works.

Lock Haven is bragging and blowing about the extensive fire brick works that will probably shortly be opened in the vicinity of Mill Hall; talking just as if that was the only fire clay found in the state. Why Old Centre county is chuck full of it, and now there is being a bank opened up on the side of Muncy Mountain near Port Matilda in Bald Eagle Valley. The prospects so far are very encouraging as a finer and better quality of clay has been found there than exists at Sandy Ridge, and that was always considered first-class.

The only question now to be considered is the amount of the clay. If, upon investigation, it should prove to be of an abundant supply, work would at once be commenced on the erection of extensive works and it would not be many months until fire brick, of the finest quality, would be manufactured at that point. It has always been known that Centre county was a rich one in minerals and valuable clays, but it now seems as if it is not yet fully explored, and who knows, perhaps under the unexplored surface may be yet hidden away countless millions of untold wealth in the shape of a more precious metal than that ever yet discovered in these eastern states—gold and silver.

Pennsylvania Squirrel Crop.

The squirrel season of 1889, which by State law opened on September 1 and closed with the year, will long be remembered throughout the State on account of what seemed to be almost a miraculous visitation of squirrels. In Erie county, counting the red squirrel, there were fully 10,000 killed. In Clinton, Clearfield, Centre and Bedford counties the visitation of the animals was phenomenal, extending over a belt 30 miles wide and 100 miles long, and continuing between five and six weeks. In fact, so plentiful was this species of game that, instead of being hunted and chased by local gunners, the squirrels became rather a pest and scourge, from which the country people had to defend themselves as best they might with implements ready at hand. In Buffalo Run Valley, Centre county, 6,000 are estimated to have been killed within a radius of three miles.

Election of Officers.

At the annual election of the Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Centre county, on Monday, the following directors were chosen for the ensuing year: S J Herring, Samuel Gramley, Daniel Brumgard, Samuel Slack, Wm. McFarlane, J B Fisher, Jacob Bottorf, H C Campbell, J G Bartley, H E Duck, Fred Kurtz, J H Musser. Whereupon the board organized by electing the following officers:

President, Frederick Kurtz; Vice President, S J Herring; Treasurer, Wm Wolf; Secretary, D F Luse.

The Remedy for the Influenza.

A remedy recommended for patients afflicted with the influenza is Kemp's Balsam, the specific for coughs and colds, which is especialy adapted to the disease of the throat and lungs. Do not wait for the first symptoms of the disease before securing the remedy, but get a bottle and keep it on hand for use the moment it is needed. If neglected the influenza has a tendency to bring on pneumonia. All druggists sell the Balsm.

Construction of the High License Act

The following is quoted from an opinion lately filed by Justice Williams of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania:

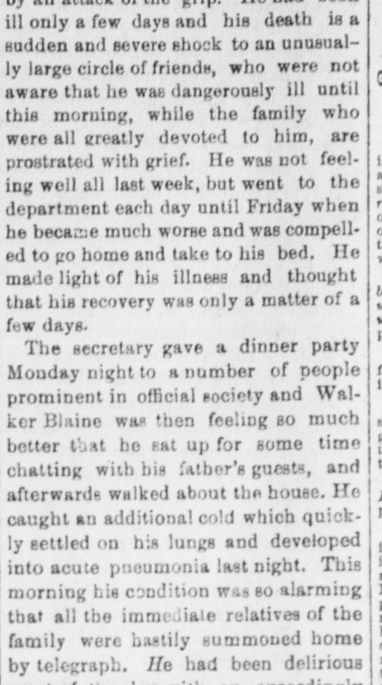
"The Act of 1887 is not directed against the making or use of cider by the farmer. He may both make and use it as he will, He can have it on his table or in his field. That is his personal privilege: But when he allows men to assemble in his barn or about his premises who are visibly intoxicated, and he sells or gives to them intoxicating liquors while in that condition, his conduct affects not himself or his family merely, but his neighbors and the public, and becomes a subject of investigation and punishment under the provisions of the act of 1887.

Walker Blaine Dead.

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 15.—Walker Blaine, examiner of claims of the state department and eldest son of James G. Blaine, Secretary of State, died at the family residence at 8.20 this evening, of acute pneumonia, superinduced by an attack of the grip. He had been ill only a few days and his death is a sudden and severe shock to an unusually large circle of friends, who were not aware that he was dangerously ill until this morning, while the family who were all greatly devoted to him, are prostrated with grief. He was not feeling well all last week, but went to the department each day until Friday when he became much worse and was compelled to go home and take to his bed. He made light of his illness and thought that his recovery was only a matter of a few days.

The secretary gave a dinner party Monday night to a number of people prominent in official society and Walker Blaine was then feeling so much better that he sat up for some time chatting with his father's guests, and afterwards walked about the house. He caught an additional cold which quickly settled on his lungs and developed into acute pneumonia last night. This morning his condition was so alarming that all the immediate relatives of the family were hastily summoned home by telegraph. He had been delirious most of the day with an exceedingly high temperature and painfully labored respiration.

—When a "reform" is mentioned now-a-days, it is looked upon with suspicion by politicians, who want to see whether its adoption will deprive them of the power and "influence" they exercise over the dear people. It was so with the anti-slavery and temperance reforms, and is so with civil service and ballot reforms. Let the politicians be kept in the rear, and moral, social and political reforms will be rapidly inaugurated and advanced.



Copyright, 1889.

The equivalent, in English money, of $2,500 was once offered by an old lady in London for the return of a favorite cat which had strayed or been stolen. People called her a "crank," and perhaps she was. It is unfortunate that one of the gentler sex should ever gain this title, yet many do. It is, however, frequently not their fault. Often functional derangements will apparently change a woman's entire nature. Don't blame such sufferers if they are "cranky," but tell them to use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is an infallible remedy for "female weaknesses."

"Favorite Prescription" has cured thousands of poor, bed-ridden suffering women of "female weakness," painful irregularities, ulcerations, organic displacements and kindred ailments too numerous to mention. It is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee that it will, in every case, give satisfaction or the price ($1.00) will be refunded.

The only true practical

ELIXIR OF LIFE AND HEALTH.

is one that promotes digestion, improves the appetite, cleanses the liver, purifies the blood, and stimulates brain and nerves without injurious reaction, and one that may be taken alike by adult or infant. Profane compounds, made of vile rum or bad whiskey, sweetened and flavored, under the titles of bitters, tonics, &c, produce effects far worse than the disease for which they are taken.

Vinegar Bitters is a pure tonic, a nervine without being narcotic, a purifier without poison, a liver tonic without purging, and above all, a life-giving stimulant without alcohol. The only medicine with such powers in the world.

A GENUINE TEMPERANCE BEVERAGE,

far surpassing alcohol in any shape as a tonic it might be called

since it stimulates, invigorates and regulates digestion, nutrition, secretion, excretion, respiration, and all the functions whereby life is maintained—we literally take in vitality in spoonsful.

It is too much to assert that the equal of Vinegar Bitters does not exist, and no counterpart or compound with similar virtues has ever been known.

CALIFORNIA,

if remarkable for nothing else, would be immortalized by the production of the medicinal fruits, roots and herbs of which this Bitters is composed. Many of them used by the Indians and the medical profession in the treatment of chills and fevers, rheumatism, catarrh, consumption, neuralgia, headaches, liver complaint, kidney disease, jaundice, gout, piles, boils, skin diseases, &c., &c., too numerous to mention, but easily understood when the action of the Bitters on the vital functions is remembered. The discovery was partly accidental but the present

Millions of sufferers have gratefully and gladly endorsed, during the past quarter of a century the wonderful success of this

PHENOMENAL TONIC OF THE WORLD.

In order to meet every probable demand, two formulas of the same ingredients are now put up.

THE OLD STYLE IS STRONGER, SLIGHTLY BITTER, AND MORE CATHARTIC.

THE NEW STYLE, PLEASANT TO THE TASTE, AND EXPRESSLY ADAPTED TO DELICATE WOMEN AND CHILDREN.

REMEMBER,

There is no disease of low vitality, debility of functions, or nervous prostration for which

VINEGAR BITTERS IS NOT CURATIVE, and its singular power over the lower organisms renders it the implacable foe of in malarial diseases, cholera, consumption, internal diseases, &c., and so great is its power as a germicide that it is an

UNEQUALLED VERMIFUGE.

A book could be written of its virtues, and another of testimonials, but it is only necessary to remember its general action upon the liver, blood, brain and nerves, to realize its use in a majority of the ills that flesh is heir to, and that no family should ever be without a bottle of

THE ANDREWS TRIAL.

Not Many More Days Until Albert Andrews Will be Placed on Trial for his Life.

Only a few more days or on next Monday, January 27, the session of court will convene at which Albert Andrews will be given a trial by his country before God and man on the very grave charge of murder—of taking the life of an innocent, unsuspecting girl, and on the disclosures of the evidence which the Commonwealth will have collected against him and the amount and importance of the evidence that the defence will be able to offer in rebuttal, depends whether the prisoner will be freed from the terrible charge hanging over him and allowed to again go forth among his fellowmen, or whether he will be found guilty of the terrible charge as he will stand indicted and be doomed to die the ignominious death of a murderer—execution on the scaffold.

It is a sad, sorry thing to contemplate, and for the sake of the prisoner, it is to hoped, that he will be able to prove himself innocent. While on the other hand, when the enormity of the crime is contemplated, the devilishness and inhumanity of the deed taken into consideration, it is to be hoped that the perpetrator whoever he may be, will with a certainty be discovered and that the full penalty of the law shall be meted out to him—only in such a way can the blood of his victim be avenged. Both the Commonwealth and defence have been very busy collecting evidence and only a full knowledge of what they have gathered as it shall be given before a court and jury will justify any opinion, expressed or implied.

In view of all this, we take pleasure in saying in response to the many hundreds of inquiries as to whether this paper will print the proceedings in full that it will. With the usual promptness and enterprise that characterizes every department of this paper, the DAILY NEWS will print, in full up to the hour of going to press, the entire proceedings of the Andrews trial. Any person who is not now a subscriber can have the paper delivered to them, either by mail or carrier, or sent to a friend out of town for the small sum of ten cents a week. Send in your names early and thus insure prompt delivery by securing proper entry.

Conductor Haupt Assaulted.

Three young men of Clearfield boarded the ten fifty-five train at Clearfield Thursday morning to come to Curwensville. All were more or less under the influence of liquor, but not enough but that they knew enough to dispute about their fare which none of them had paid. The trouble first arose when Brakeman Jimmy McGee passed through the car, when one of them refused to let him pass and a scuffle ensued. Two of the young men seemed to be trying to pacify the other one when conductor Allison Haupt came in and requested them to behave or they would be put off. The third young man, became more offensive and was put off at a cut a mile below town. Just as the train started the man viciously hurled a large stone at conductor Haupt. It struck the end of the coach, glanced and cut a deep gash in Mr. Haupt's head, just above the forehead almost knocking him down. Mr. Haupt also received bad bruises on the hand. The fellow then stoned the train as it moved off. Conductor Haupt had his wounds dressed by Dr. Jenkins and then made information before Squire D S Moore. Two of the gentlemen gave themselves up. There will be a hearing in the case sometime this week.

R Milton Speer.

The death of R Milton Speer, of Huntingdon, which occurred in New York on Friday will leave a vacancy in the legal profession that will be hard to fill. His reputation as a masterful practitioner and learned disciple of Blackstone was not confined to the place of his residence but was well known all over Pennsylvania and even in other states. He has practiced in the courts of Centre county and will be remembered by all who then heard him as one of the bright lights in his profession.

Mr. Speer was not an old man, being born in 1838, he was at the time of his death but 51 years old, yet in that time he had experienced a very brilliant career. Admitted to the Huntingdon county bar in 1860, he soon rose through his own energy, zeal and determination, to be the leading member of all the legal profession that practiced in that place. He was an active politician of the democratic faith and his party rewarded his efficient service by electing him assistant clerk of the House of Representatives at Harrisburg in 1863. In 1870 he was elected to Congress and re-elected in 1872. In 1872 he was a delegate to the National convention in Baltimore that nominated Horace Greely for President, and in 1878 he was chairman of the State Democratic Committee. In 1880 he was a delegate at large to the national convention that nominated Gen, Hancock for President; he also was one of the electors on the Cleveland ticket in 1888.

As a private citizen Mr. Speer was in every way the counterpart of his career as a public man. At his death he left five children to mourn the loss of a kind and indulgent father. Mr. Speer was well known in Bellefonte and his death causes deep regret among his many friends here.

Russell H Conwell.

All holders of course tickets for the series of W C T U entertainments, as well as the public in general, will take notice that the date of the lecture of Russell H Conwell, which was to have been delivered in this place on February 7th has been changed to a little more than a week earlier, or to come on Wednesday, January 29, when that Bellefonte favorite, Mr. Conwell, will appear in the court house, this place. The lecturer is so well known by many persons in Bellefonte that any comment might seem superfluous but for those that have not heard him we quote the comment of the New York Evening Post "Unexcelled by any orator in America, and perhaps the equal of any in the world in those marvelous discriptive powers." Secure your ticket now as the court house will undoubtedly be crowded to overflowing.

—From appearances on Tuesday it was evident that the very small council meeting of Monday night was not entirely in vain, as the borough engineer, D M Butts, Mr. Gault, of street committee, and street commissioner Shaughency were seen to go, fully equipped and accoutred for business, over on Thomas street for the purpose of giving Mr. Thomas Shoemaker the grade of that thoroughfare. It will be remembered that some time after the Messrs. Collins started in business at the old fair grounds Mr. Shoemaker requested Council to give him the grade of the street above named that he might put down a new board walk along their for the convenience of the public in general, and now Council has finally agreed to give it to him. So have patience, dear public, it may be that sometime in the near future that outrageously bad bordwalk will be put in a condition fit to travel over.

—In the council chamber Monday evening when the opening hour was at hand only three members were present. Ten, fifteen minutes passed and no more come in. Mr. Bauer moved Mr. Howley act as President; motion seconded by Mr. Gault and voted aye by Gault and Bauer. Howley takes the chair and orders bills as sanctioned, presented and signed to be passed and orders drawn for the respective amounts. No quorum for the transaction of business being present a motion to adjourn was then in order. Motion made by Mr. Gault, seconded by Mr. Bauer and voted aye by all. President pro tem. Howley declares council adjourned just as councilman Robert Cole enters the door, but too late. Then all go home and the work of council for Monday evening, January 20th, has passed into history. Selah.

—In this issue of our paper is a preliminary letter from the Bureau of Southern News. Next week we furnish our readers with "The physical geography of the South," to be followed by 'How cotton is grown.' We are promised a package of cotton seed and our readers and the public are invited to visit our office and inspect the seed. This letter will be of special interest to the farmers. Those who are not already subscribers to our paper should come forward and give us their names so they can from week to week learn something about farming down in "Dixie."

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

A Very Instructive Communication on the Deprivation of Farm Values.

The following communication from Bellefonte we clip from the New York Evening Post. From the initials we assume this to be from the pen of one of our greatest travelers, whom we know to be a close observer, and at home a great student of books:

TO THE EDITOR OF THE EVENING POST:

SIR: Your correspondent "Native," in his very entertaining letter published in THE EVENING POST of the 14th inst, enters most cleverly into the true field for examination as to the causes for the depreciation of farm values, which, from what he points out and from other causes worthy of study, extends to farm values east of the Mississippi and not to New England alone.

The farmer entering the forests of New England, as elsewhere, commences at the hill-tops, for there he finds a virgin soil with solid ground underneath for roads and buildings, without great cost, while the valleys and lowlands are still but swamps. He soon destroys the forests, and with this exposes his farm to the drying up influences of the sun thereby giving to the rainfall a flow that is steadily carrying his soil into the valleys, the farmer himself failing too often to note the process that is destroying his farm, and, in his haste to be rich, unmindful that he cannot for ever have virgin soil without returning to the land or restoring its primitive conditions. Discouraged and bewildered with the results, he follows the virgin soil into and clears up the valleys, leaving to wondering youth to guess at the "stupidity" of his grandparents in making roads and building houses altogether on the hill-tops.

The virgin soil exhausted in the valleys, he seeks it in Ohio, and later in Indiana, and still later in Illinois and Iowa, giving over his depreciated farms to the care of those who refuse to note that they are surrounded with new conditions and new demands, and that they must adopt new methods and new crops, and not attempt competition with those now cultivating virgin soil within reach of railroads in the far West.

What the duration of the virgin alluvial soil of the great valleys of the West for productive farming may prove to be is a subject worthy of profound examination, for in this will be found matter more important to farm values, both East and West, than the remote benefits of free trade to the farmer. Then too must be closely and wisely watched the effect and result of the cultivation of the thin soil with which nature has covered those vast alkali plains of the West. At present, with abundant rainfall, they are most productive, but in dry seasons they are but plains of desert. By some it is maintained that cultivation is here gradually deepening the soil, and they evidence the Bad Lands of years gone by in northern Nebraska, now fairly productive; but the duration under cultivation for profitable farming is still the important problem in farm values prospectively. Very truly yours, J. M.

BELLEFONTE, PA., Jan 17.

Howard Happenings.

The goose bone prophecy so far has completely failed as the "severe winter weather" has not yet reached us. There is, however, plenty of mud and hard traveling.

The bridge below Howard, which was taken away by the June flood, is again being rebuilt and very soon the public will have the pleasure of crossing the Bald Eagle high and dry. It seems outrageous that a bridge of that size cannot be erected in eight months without working on Sundays.

During the recent high water the race leading to the Howard rolling mill was broken, which put a stop to operations at the mill for several days. Repairs, however, are being made speedily, as Jenkins Bros. and Lingle mean business.

Mr. Will Lucas, Shutt's fireman, had the misfortune to have his arm badly cut on the "edger." Will, be careful where you throw your arm hereafter.

A great many of our citizens are afflicted with the grippe. Joseph B. Hall and his daughter, Ellie, have been under Dr. Hensyl's care for some time. We are glad to know that they are convalescing.

Mrs. Meese, who has been ill for some time, is still very feeble.

Miss Anna Wetzler, from Milesburg, who has been visiting in Howard, returned home Monday evening.

Miss Sallie Lucas and Miss Jennie Pletcher spent Sunday at Beech Creek.

Three Items from Millheim.

Mrs. William H Weaver is on the sick list this week. She is lying very low at present with the heart disease.

The lot whereon the Evangelical parsonage is built has been filled up the past week, and it very much improves the appearance of that property.

Mr. A Sternberg, of Bellefonte, has recently opened up a clothing store in the Musser building, opposite the Evangelical church in this place. He keeps on hand a large stock of men's and boy's clothing.

—The race around the world is drawing to a close. Sunday, the 26th, is the day set for the contestants to arrive in New York. Miss Bisland is now on the Atlantic steaming for New York. Nellie Bly has not yet reached San Francisco and when she does the snow blockade on the Union Pacific will hinder a direct passage homeward, and if she comes by the Southern Pacific it will be a long trip and she will come without the escort sent out to meet her. At this stage of the race such delays become mighty annoying.

Personal Pencilings.

Mr. James Milliken is now sojourning in New York City.

Lieutenant Colonel Mullen was in Tyrone on Tuesday.

Mr. J. Fearon Mann, of this place, was in Tyrone on Friday.

William Searfoss, of Lock Haven, is now on a trip to Centre Hall.

Lieut. James Leyden and wife have gone to their home in the far west.

We notice Mr. W I Swoope, Esq., again in Bellefonte, having returned from a three months' trip to Texas. Mr. Swoope is looking very well and his many friends will, no doubt, delight in welcoming him back again. We trust the young gentleman will settle down and be one with us.

Frank Sweeney, of Smithport, McKean county, formerly of Pleasant Gap and Bellefonte, was in the city to day, on his way to his old home to spend a vacation. Frank formerly worked here in the tailoring establishment of Mr. Rinn, but thinks that he will settle down for good in Smithport, which is quite a substantial little county seat.—Lock Haven Democrat.

Mr. W. A. Hartsock, one of the pushing and go-ahead citizens of Martha Furnace, was in Bellefonte on Monday as a witness in a case of Brown vs. Dillon. While in town Mr. Hartsock did not forget to call at this office. He is a well informed gentleman politically and socially and his knowledge of politics and politicians throughout Centre county is nowise limited.

Miss Mattie Weld, who was visiting at the residence of Mr. W. S. Port, on Howard street, departed on last Thursday for Port Matilda where she will make her home with her brother, Prof. George Weld, who has recently taken up his abode in that place. Miss Weld is a very estimable young lady and will make many warm friends wherever she goes. In addition to her many charms she is also a skilled musician.

The Newspaper An Educator.

The boy or girl who is a regular newspaper reader will grow up to intelligence, and will use good language, both in speaking and writing, even with a limited education. It is news, science, literature, grammar, history, geography and spelling combined. Sometimes it is a little hard to get children interested in newspapers, but after they once get started, their intellectual cravings are sure as the desire for food, and it is as necessary to feed their minds as their bodies. The local paper is the first to attract their attention. Incidentally they first read of some local event which came under their observation. Becoming regular readers of the home paper, they soon branch out into the affairs of the world, and read the general news of the day, and finally become competent to discuss matter of public interest, and are useful and intelligent citizens.

—The building of the Morris works at his new lime stone quarries on East Linn Street, continue uninterruptedly. On Tuesday the crusher building, which is seventy-five by two hundred feet in size, was raised. With fair weather it would only require several weeks more work to have everything in order to begin operations at that place. It will however, be longer than that before any railroad communication can be had.

TWO LETTERS FROM HOUSERVILLE.

Picked up and Dished up Items of News to Interest the Reader.

Mr. S A Brew is now hauling his ore to Lemont and from there shipping it to McCoy & Linn's, at Milesburg.

Miss Mary Houser and her best friend were visiting at the home of the former's grandmother, Mrs. Roller, of Buffalo Run, on last Sabbath.

Mr. Wm. Coble, is preparing lumber to build an addition to his barn the coming spring.

Some of our young ladies have a great fancy for color. Some take pink, some brown and others white but Miss Mary Johnstonbaugh prefers (Rhone) roan.

Among the people who have been sick but are now convalescing are Mrs. Sadie Lutz, Grant Coble, Irwin Shuey and Mrs. Daniel Houser.

Rev. A A Black, of the Reformed church is now holding preparatory services and on Sunday will have communion.

Messrs. D P Solt and S B Wasson made a flying trip to Bellefonte on Saturday afternoon, returning home the same night.

UGLY JOE.

Miss Maggie Keller, of Linden Hall, was a recent visitor in this place.

Miss Ella Mayes, of Boalsburg, visited friends here last week.

Mr. Joe Gross has a very severe attack of the grippe. Joe says the grippe appears to have a hankering after him as he has had several attacks of it.

Mr. Lewis Long was accidentally thrown from a wagon the other day and very badly hurt. One side of his face was badly bruised by striking the frozen ground. Mr. Long was head clerk in Chas. Everett's drug store for a number of years but lately he bought Mr. Everett's stock of hardware and then went into partnership with Wm. Mogul, of that place. They now have a first class hardware and confectionery store.

Any person wishing to trade a pair of side whiskers, sandy preferred, for a darling black mostache would do well to call on C E, Lemont.

SHORTY.

Written for the DAILY NEWS.

"Joe."

Mrs. T P Rynder.

I'm delighted to meet you again, Comrade John,
For we of the old "Fifty-Eight,"
Meet seldom my brother—we're almost all gone—
I've thought of you often of late.

Perhaps in your wandering you somewhere have heard
Of Company G's boy, "Black Joe,"
Did he fall at Cold Harbor by shot or by sword?
Is he living? Ah! you do not know.

I would give for one grasp of his dusky hand,
Any treasure my future may hold,
For I owe him a debt that no man in the land
May cancel with silver or gold.

For gratitude's debts are not paid in cold cash,
And few friends were as faithful as Joe;
Though born into bondage, and scarred by the lash,
Few hearts there were white, I trow.

If by chance you should meet him, my comrade of old,
Please tell him as coming from me,
That his memory cherished can never grow cold
In the heart of Lieutenant——, of "G."

—On Tuesday evening policeman Garis was called into Lyon's store and informed that a Hungarian had been robbed of $20. Wm. Young, an American, was charged with being the robber. The young man raised no objections to being searched which was at once done, but no $20 was found. The policeman had about concluded it was a McGinty canard when a Hungarian stepped up and said: "Man got money in his mouth." Young was asked to open his mouth but refused. He was then caught and thrown down and with assistance his mouth was opened and there the two $10 bills were found. He was then placed in jail and will be given a hearing this evening at 7 o'clock.

Mud Throwing.

An exchange discourses the following truthful-epistle. Let a man get down and there is always some one ready to kick, no matter how hard he is trying to get up. We wonder why it is that some people love so much more to find evil than good in a person. A noble character is to them as a white-washed fence, against which they may throw mud. They see a rent in a garment, they delight to tear it more. Let a man have a flaw in his character and his neighbors will talk it into a crime, or try to. Meddlesome's gossiper, what do you gain by it? What is your reward?

☞Special notice is hereby given to any persons sending postage stamps to this office that no denomination will be accepted only one cent and two cent stamps. All stamps of a larger denomination are worthless to us as they are not large enough for a newspaper wrapper and too short for a cigar lighter, therefore, friends, please remember and send only one and two cent stamps.
